

Win Three More Seats

Cabinet Members Re-elected

HALIFAX (CP) — The Progressive Conservative government of Nova Scotia won an overwhelming endorsement from the electors Tuesday.

(See also Page 3.)

"My party realizes the great responsibility that we have and we are gratefully thankful for the new mandate given us," Premier Robert L. Stanfield said in Truro, where he got results in his own constituency of Colchester. He won easily over Liberal and CCF candidates.

Final CP Standing		1960	1956
Prog. Con.	27	24
Liberals	15	18
CCF	1	1
Total	43	43

All Mr. Stanfield's cabinet ministers were re-elected with him. The Progressive Conservative group in 43-seat House will number 27, three more than after the 1956 election.

The Liberals, 18-strong four years ago, now have 15 members in the House. The CCF, as in 1956, elected one.

PERSONAL DEFEAT

Liberal Leader Henry Hicks, who suffered personal defeat in Annapolis East, said he plans to take a weekend trip before deciding his future. Hanson T. Dowell, a former president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, won Mr. Hicks' seat for the Conservatives by 14 votes. A recount is in prospect.

Kentville Mayor Gladys Porter became the first woman ever elected to the legislature. She won for the Progressive Conservatives in Kings North.

POSED QUESTION

The sweeping Conservative victory posed the question of leadership of the Liberal party, which Mr. Hicks won at a bitterly-fought 1954 party convention. He succeeded the late Angus L. Macdonald, premier from 1933 until 1954 except for a period of wartime service in the federal cabinet.

Mr. Hicks expressed surprise at the defeat of Liberal financial critic Ronald M. Fielding in Halifax Northwest.

CLOSE LOSSES

"How close can you come?" he asked. "He loses by 17 votes, myself by 14."

CCF Leader Michael Macdonald was the only member elected by his party. He has represented Cape Breton Centre in the House since 1945. The other 33 CCF candidates generally trailed but drew a much larger share of the popular vote than in 1956 when their 11 candidates gained only three per cent.

Philip Lands In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Prince Philip flew into Uplands Airport Tuesday afternoon for an overnight visit to Canada's capital. He was greeted by Governor-General Vanier and Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

This morning, the prince is to fly to Toronto for talks aimed at laying the groundwork for an industrial and labor relations conference to be held in 1962, which he is expected to attend.

BAFFLING CLUES CONFRONT ROUND-THE-CLOCK SEARCH

Bomarc Fire

Radiation Released

McGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N.J. (AP)—Fire broke out Tuesday in the launching shelter of an atomic-armed Bomarc-A anti-aircraft missile, releasing a small amount of radiation, the air force reported.

At first there was fear of widespread radiation over the sparsely populated pineland area around the base east of here. However, the air force in Washington later said there was no "significant" danger to the public.

The few highways that crisscross the remote countryside were closed off for a time. Police with geiger counters checked cars coming from the direction of the base.

A defence department expert said there had been no explosion.

The Bomarc-A is similar in outward appearance to the Bomarc-B which Canada is to get to man two anti-aircraft squadrons.

McGuire is about 35 miles northeast of Philadelphia. The air force said the blaze broke out at 3:15 p.m. and was extinguished 45 minutes later.

A sergeant at the missile base first called state police at the Fort Dix station saying "an atomic warhead had exploded" and asked troops to shut off the roads because of heavy radiation. Police did so.

The fire was in a 50-foot concrete shed that houses the slender missile.

On the basis of first reports, officials speculated the fire may have melted or burned open part of the covering of the nuclear armament of the Bomarc.

Chinese Mutiny Quelled in Tibet

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Several Red Chinese officers were killed by their own soldiers in a planned mutiny in various Chinese military camps in Tibet, reports here said today. Unconfirmed reports said the mutineers suffered more than 2,000 casualties.

Other reports said new officers were sent from Peking to quell the uprising. Mutiny followed complaints of new Chinese and Tibetan recruits over lack of adequate food and inhuman treatment by the officers.

Herter Thinks Ike Will Visit Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Christian Herter said Tuesday he believes President Eisenhower should, and will, go ahead with his visit to Japan June 19-22 despite growing concern about what he may face there.

But Senator William Fulbright (Dem., Ark.), chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee before which Herter testified, said his misgivings about Eisenhower's going have not been entirely set to rest.

Trouble Likely

TOKYO (AP)—Leftist students vowed Tuesday to group on airport runways June 19 to halt President Eisenhower's arrival for a four-day state visit.

Chilean Lake Still Rising

Flood, Gales Stop 35,000 Fleeing Quake-Jolted City

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Some 35,000 persons began streaming out of quake-wrecked Valdivia last night on foot and in cars and trucks to escape the flood threat posed by the rain-swollen waters of Lake Rinihue, 45 miles east of the city.

But gales and heavy rains cut off land, sea and air approaches to the city, blocking all efforts to move the city's populace to safety.

Heavy seas stopped two Chilean cruisers trying to reach 1,600 women and children at a nearby harbor.

Fifteen Chilean freighters stood by to aid in the mass rescue when the weather cleared. Argentina alerted its merchant marine to aid if necessary.

Tropical rains washed out Valdivia's airport and stranded 100 children waiting there to be airlifted to Santiago. Flooded highways stranded another 200 persons seeking to get by land to nearby Temuco, and halted 54 trucks carrying emergency supplies to the area.

Fear Some Following Tracks of Other Searchers

By PETER BRUTON and ALEC MERRIMAN

Ten days after a light Seabee aircraft slammed into a Nitinat Lake mountainside the search for its missing passenger went onto a 24-hour, around-the-clock basis after a day in which more baffling and inconclusive clues to his whereabouts were unearthed.

It is now apparent that the 300-man army of searchers in the dense, dank timber country 70 miles north of Victoria have in some cases mistaken signs and tracks left by other searchers as evidence that the missing Victoria taxi owner Cecil Rawlings had passed that way.

CONFLICTING VIEWS

Conflicting statements were made yesterday by various people taking part in the search for Rawlings who has been missing since the crash which took the life of his business partner Cecil Rhodes May 29.

Nevertheless most of those taking part in the massive search operation have now become convinced that Rawlings escaped from the wreckage alive.

ABLE TO COPE

"Everybody is going on the assumption that when he left the site of the crash he was able to cope with the situation," said Maj. W. B. Sutherland, officer commanding 250 troops of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry who have been taking part in the ground search.

"There is good evidence Rawlings got out and was fit."

Highlights of a confusing Tuesday were:

● The report that evidence was found of a recent campfire and an arrow of stones presumably pointing in the direction Rawlings had taken. Later, however, RCMP officers said they did not believe "that means anything," that there was not a stone arrow, and that in all probability the evidence of humans having been in the area had been left by previous search parties.

● The discovery of some banana peels and cigar butts of the same filter-tipped brand used by Rawlings. These, too, could have been dropped by other ground parties.

● A statement by search officials that they did not know whether the tracks originally thought to be those of Rawlings were not, in fact, those of searchers.

● An order by search coordinators that all civilians in the area must leave.

● The withdrawal of all but 50 men of the PPCLI from the area because they could not be "usefully utilized."

● The belief of some experienced woodsmen that the missing man could have remained two or three days at the place where his camera was found, 1,200 feet from the crashed aircraft.

● The decision by co-ordinators that a small party armed with flashlights should continue looking for Rawlings throughout the night.

The search has now been narrowed down to a few areas where it is considered most likely Rawlings would be.

A concerted drive will be made this morning by the remaining Princess Pats accompanied by veteran woodsmen

Cable Snaps

Copter Drops Tired Hunter

Search parties seeking Cecil Rawlings ran into their first disaster last evening—and again the entire story was a mystery.

An RCAF helicopter, trying to airlift an exhausted searcher from the mountainous terrain, failed when the cable broke and dropped the man crashing back to the ground.

HAD TO LEAVE

With the second helicopter back in Vancouver for essential overhaul and darkness falling rapidly, the RCAF was forced to turn its back on the situation.

Copters are not permitted to operate after dark.

This is how the story unfolded:

WAVED AWAY

On a late check of the area near the crashed Seabee, Flt. Lt. P. T. Mathews spotted a small search party with a man who appeared exhausted. A pass was made to investigate, but the party waved the ship away.

Later, Mathews and his crew saw the man again, alone, flat on the ground and apparently unconscious, and the pilot felt he must investigate. A first-aid crewman was lowered on the winch to check condition, and started to send the searcher up by cable.

The cable broke when about 100 feet was out, but there was no indication of how far the man fell or how seriously he was injured. With darkness falling, Mathews was forced to leave the crewman and his patient.

Mathews said he believed the crewman made the searcher as comfortable and warm as possible, and set out to try to find a search party to carry the man safely.

NOTHING KNOWN

That was all that will be known until morning.

How seriously was the man injured? What was the crewman's plan? Who was the victim? These were new mysteries in a baffling case.

RCMP are investigating and the RCAF has requested an immediate board of inquiry. RCAF officials said there was "absolutely no possibility" that the man lying on the ground could be Rawlings.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Anything we can make, the Japanese can make for a lower price. And it's just as good, too. Why kid ourselves?

Cameras, watches, radios, toys, steel girders, totem poles—name it, and they make it in Japan.

They can ship their stuff across the Pacific, pay tariffs and undersell us by half, right on our own home grounds.

Of course, they are gentle men. They are helping us by boosting their prices. They're holding back on exports to Canada, too. I believe. But there is a limit to the self-restraint a group of businessmen can show.

When it comes to competitive selling, the Japanese can beat us in our own yard, even though we own the ball and make the rules.

They Can Murder Us

In the big world outside, they can murder us.

How can $2 an hour compete with $2 a day? Well, one method is to have the $2-an-hour man running such a big, efficient machine that he can produce 10 times more than his little brother in the sweat shop.

We're trying that. We're installing more and bigger machines. Every time we hire a new machine, we fire a dozen men. Sooner or later, everything in the country will be made in one big machine controlled by one man at a push-button control panel.

Everybody else will be out of work. However, it will be worth the sacrifice. We'll be able to produce at truly low, low prices, and our labor force will be the best-paid in the world.

There is only one other hope. Send missionaries to the Orient and convert the Japanese and other thrifty people to the North American way of life.

No Rice-Straw Mats

Make them buy things they can't afford, at nothing down and a nickel a week forever. Convince them that the best people don't sit on rice-straw matting. They demand all-new, washable Schmoelens.

Send the motivational research boys to them, preaching the gospel of discontent and envy. Make them covet their neighbor's washing machine.

According to the reports, we're already doing that to Europe, where the old frugal ways are rapidly vanishing. The corruption of wealth, ease and selfishness must be spread to Japan as well. There is no time to lose.

All right, men, let's get in there and sell. If we don't get the message across, we'll soon be sitting on straw mats ourselves.

It will be the best thing that ever happened to us. But we have to fight it, all the same, because that's the way our minds are built.

Rawlings Search

Clues Baffling

while a party of the most experienced loggers is being held in reserve at the Nadira mines advance base to be rushed into the area as soon as more definite clues are found.

The main search area is still that leading from the wreckage down to Hobbiton Lake.

NO CROSSING

"I am confident that no man has crossed west of Hobbiton Lake," one of the search leaders told The Daily Colonist at the Nadira base yesterday.

Logger Todd Palliser and veteran pilot Gordon McSwain of Cassidair Services Limited of Nanaimo swooped down in a Piper Cub to search all small lakes and water courses leading to the west coast of the island yesterday.

BRUSHED TREES

Some of the lakes were a mere 800 feet long and the plane's pontoons scraped tree tops as the plane took off.

"I am confident Rawlings is still in the Hobbiton-Hitchie Lake watershed region," Palliser said later.

At 5 a.m. today an RCMP Beaver will depart from the north end of Nitinat Lake to fly into the area and up the Hobbiton Creek bed.

Another group of five men will check between Tusiat Lake and Hobbiton Lakes.

Rawlings' dog, a "one-man" animal, was taken into the area but failed to pick up tracks, as did an RCMP tracker dog from Parksville.

CONFUSING CLUES

An army spokesman at the advance base stated: "We've turned up a lot of things that might be termed 'confusing clues.'"

These included the discovery of banana peelings and a number of Du Maurier cigarette butts which Rawlings was known to smoke.

"These could have been dropped by a search party which went through the area previously however," said the army official. "We just don't know."

Excitement mounted rapidly at Nadira camp when news filtered back that an army group had found a small camp fire of recent origin and an arrow made of stones which they thought was pointing in the direction Rawlings had taken.

An RCMP Beaver flew straight to the area, near the shore of Hobbiton Lake. It turned out that the "arrow" consisted of two stones on top of each other and a stick in the middle.

ALREADY PASSED

The location of this small camp was in an identical area traversed by a B.C. Forest Products search party last Sunday.

Difficulty of communications between the base camp and the "outside world" was partly solved yesterday when the RCAF drove in a mobile communications vehicle to open up direct contact with Search and Rescue at Sea Island in Vancouver.

However, RCAF reported last night, there was still considerable difficulty in getting word out due to interference.

Search co-ordinators said last night they had plans drafted to get Rawlings out to hospital as soon as he was found.

JOLLY COLD

"The main thing is to get him to a point from where he can be evacuated," said Maj. Sutherland. "Even if he escaped uninjured he must be suffering from bad exposure by now. It's jolly cold up there."

The RCAF helicopter will likely be able to pick him up but there are some places where even a copter can't get down and a float plane might have to be used," he added.

He said Rawlings would probably be taken to Victoria "when we get him."

Meanwhile, as the search enters its 11th day, hopes are slowly fading for Cecil Rawlings.

Body Found in Trunk

Sent by Rail Collect from Toronto

ARGENTIA, Nfld. (CP)—A CNR express agent, detecting a peculiar odor in a nailed-up trunk marked "fragile," opened it Tuesday and found the body of a young woman.

RCMP in Newfoundland and police in Toronto, from where the old-fashioned wooden trunk was shipped five weeks ago, immediately began trying to trace its sender.

The trunk had been sitting around the express office at Argentia, a U.S. naval base some 85 miles from St. John's, since May 16. It was sent collect with charges totalling $17.68.

Express agent Thomas Donovan and two other men Tuesday bent over the 170-pound, four-foot trunk in the dimly lighted office and opened it. Inside was the body, wrapped in a blanket and in a cramped position.

The girl had reddish-blond hair, Donovan said she was about five feet tall, weighed 115 pounds, and wore a white dress. There were bloodstains on the trunk and the girl's clothing was damp, he said.

The trunk, marked "fragile—handle with care," was expressed here from Toronto May 4 to a Mrs. Williams of Argentia. CNR officials were unable to contact the woman.

Donovan said the CNR usually keeps baggage for six months, then opens it and auctions the contents if ownership cannot be determined.

"I opened it because of the awful smell," he said. "I knew there was something perishable in it, but didn't think for one moment it was a body."

RCMP said the woman's age has not been determined but Donovan said she appeared "only young."

An autopsy was to be held at St. John's, where the body was sent.

CNR Debate Jumps Tracks

OTTAWA (CP)—Commons debate on a $203,950,000 loan to the Canadian National Railways jumped the tracks Tuesday.

Saskatchewan

Decision Today

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan again today makes its choice between socialism and private enterprise.

About 515,000 persons out of a population of 900,000 can vote. CCF, Tories, Liberals and Social Credit are contesting all 54 seats.

The CCF became the first socialist government in North America in 1944.

Thirteen years ago it began the continent's first state compulsory hospital insurance program.

This time the government has staked its future on a compulsory, prepaid medical care plan. Premier Douglas said his government will start the plan if his party gets 51 per cent of the vote. It received 45.2 per cent in 1956.

Date with Victoria Police In U.S. Prisoner's Future

A man just sentenced to 3½ years in the penitentiary on a fraud-by-check charge at Albuquerque, N.M., has a future date with Victoria police.

He was arrested April 16 in possession of a U-drive car day in a charge that Progressive Conservative MPs, including the prime minister, advanced the interests of the railway.

HOTLY DENIED

Erhart Regier, (CCF-Burnaby-Coquitlam), voicing the charge that was hotly denied by Mr. Diefenbaker, also said Finance Minister Fleming is an added burden to the publicly-owned CNR, pursuing his point to such an extent that finally Mr. Fleming asked: "Is there no limit to stupidity?"

Mr. Regier said that Mr. Fleming "because of his own financial predicament last year caused the CNR to apply to the money market on the advances it had received from the treasury."

ADDITIONAL INTEREST

"Therefore the railway was burdened with an additional interest levied on the money obtained and all this merely to relieve the minister of the financial difficulties in which he found himself," Mr. Regier said.

"That is utterly untrue," interjected Mr. Fleming who argued that the CNR owed the government $400,000,000 on interim loans when the Progressives took office.

Nova Scotia Win Major Test

Tories Cheer in Ottawa

OTTAWA (UPI)—Federal Conservatives were jubilant and Liberals disappointed last night at re-election of the Stanfield Conservative government of Nova Scotia.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker received the news at home just before leaving for a dinner for Prince Philip at Government House.

"He was delighted," an aide said, when told that the Conservatives would be returned with a larger majority. The prime minister sent a congratulatory message to the winner.

Liberal leader Lester Pearson was not expected to make any official comment until today, but Liberal members of parliament were disappointed.

The win was not unexpected because voters in the Maritime provinces usually vote on federal lines.

Sources said it pointed to a similar victory for the Conservatives in New Brunswick June 27 because Premier Robert Stanfield was regarded to have been in greater danger of losing than Premier Hugh John Flemming of New Brunswick.

The win could conceivably affect the chances of the Union Nationale in Quebec June 22 but it was not expected to have any great effect on the outcome of the Saskatchewan election today, despite the fact the CCF made its strongest campaign in Nova Scotia in almost 20 years.

The win was a major test of strength for the policies of the federal government as the provincial Conservatives used federal issues prominently in the campaign.

The provincial Tories played up their record of successful fiscal negotiations with Ottawa and said their return to power was essential if Nova Scotia was to continue to enjoy increased federal grants.

Federal Conservatives had been worried that the chronic unemployment problem in the Maritime region and the depressed situation in the coal industry might go against their provincial friends.

"I'm getting used to being alone," he told reporters.

CCF MLA 'Loneliest'

NEW WATERFORD, N.S. (CP)—CCF Leader Michael MacDonald said here Tuesday night that he'll be "the loneliest man in the Nova Scotia legislature."

Mr. MacDonald, only CCF member in the last 43-seat House was again the only member of his party to win in Tuesday's provincial election.

"I'm getting used to being alone," he told reporters.

No Open Skies

'Businesslike' Russian Gives West Arms Plan

GENEVA (CP)—Russia presented its revised disarmament plan to the 10-power disarmament conference Tuesday in what was described as a "businesslike atmosphere."

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin took only 35 minutes to present the three-stage plan and made only passing references to the summit breakdown and the U.S. spy plane incident.

OPEN SKIES

But he rejected President Eisenhower's "open skies" proposal as "international espionage" and said aerial photography "only helps aggressors."

The conference resumed under the chairmanship of Lt. Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada after a recess of more than five weeks.

NEVER HELD

The talks broke up in deadlock April 29 amid hopes for directives from the summit conference that never was held.

The new Soviet disarmament plan couples the elimination of all means of delivering nuclear weapons with the elimination of all military bases on foreign territories and the withdrawal of foreign troops to within their national boundaries as a first stage.

WOULD FOLLOW

Destruction of nuclear weapons and making an end to conventional arms and forces would follow.

Western delegations made it clear that the opening phase of the Soviet plan is unacceptable to the West as it now stands.

A letter from Barbara...

Copied from a drawing by Barbara Louise Lunney

We hope you enjoy this letter as much as we do. It was written by one of our 11 year old customers, a student at Unionville Public School.

Unionville Ont.
March 23, 1960.
Dear Sir,
I am not saying you do not take good care of the money in your bank but please take very good care of mine. Now I don't know just how you keep the money whether you put it all in one place together or in separate cells with locks or what. But I am saving up for a horse and as I think you know, a horse and a place to keep it, plus the feeding is very expensive and a horse is hard to support.
Thank you for taking time to read this and please help me get my horse in that way.
Yours Respectfully
Barbara Louise Lunney

YES, Barbara... The BNS knows how expensive a horse can be. So—don't worry about your money... we'll take good care of it until you are able to buy your horse.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—the improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Leave Them Buried

CASTING around for possible sources of additional revenue for the hard-pressed municipalities, the Canadian Tax Foundation has been devoting attention to the old-fashioned and in most places ill-favored poll tax, and also to a road-use tax on motorists. The foundation seems to have persuaded itself that either or both of these imposts, put on an improved collection basis, could be made feasible and fair. The flaw in its reasoning lies in the fact that what may suit one city may not suit all.

Dealing with the poll tax, the foundation concedes that in the past when in force it took no account of ability to pay and was difficult to collect. It suggests, however, that these disadvantages could be overcome if a "comparatively small" annual tax of $25 were collected only from employed persons by means of payroll deduction. Among other things the foundation sees this as a way of collecting from non-resident city employees. Some years ago there was talk of levying a city of Victoria tax on people who lived in adjoining municipalities, for the privilege of working in the city. The idea was laughed to scorn.

If the foundation believes a payroll deduction tax to be fair one can only assume that it has not studied sufficiently the differing characteristics of cities. Take Victoria. In this metropolitan region there are many thousands of well-to-do or at least comfortably circumstanced people who have private means and do not work. Would it be supportable as tax policy that such people should escape a poll or road-use tax while all the employed people, many of them with far less to live on, had to pay it? Or would it be fair to tax the head of a company at a rate no different from that imposed on junior employees?

No doubt about it, the municipalities everywhere need new or enlarged sources of revenue, but consideration of a return to the abominable old road and poll taxes which British Columbia has wisely got rid of entirely would be a waste of time.

A 25-Year Limit

FINAL reading has been given in the Commons to the bill which will permit old-age pensioners to live outside the country without their pension payments being impaired. It will not be long now before this provision will be effective, and properly so. The universal pension at 70 years of age is deemed to be earned by tax contribution and general service to the nation. It should have no strings attached to it.

It can be argued that a mistake was made when the residential qualification for this pension was cut from 20 to 10 years. This is carrying paternalism rather far. Anyone living for only 10 years in a country can scarcely be said to have played a part in the life of the nation deserving a pension that might run for 10 or 20 years more. The point is more sharply noted when it means that an immigrant can come to Canada at 60 years of age and be pensioned at 70, when perforce his age on arrival precludes any great contribution to the country's weal during the following decade.

Some heed has been paid to this aspect by limiting the class of pensioner permitted under the new bill to live elsewhere while drawing the security allowance. Such a recipient must have resided in Canada for 25 years after the age of 21 years before being eligible for continuing pension payments outside Canada. The present permissible six-months absence for all pensioners remains unaffected however.

The 25-year limit seems a wise precaution and as far as social welfare of this kind should go, although 20 years—the original residential basis of the old-age pension scheme—might have been a satisfactory mean. Certainly it would be absurd if a person could emigrate to Canada at 60, stay here 10 years, and then return for good to his native land buttressed with a permanent Canadian pension. There would be no dearth of immigrants waiting to take advantage of such largesse.

Crop Damage in Saanich

IT seems anomalous that Saanich strawberry growers, now tending crops almost at the picking and marketing stage, have to stand with their hands folded while roving flocks of migratory band-tailed pigeons denude their bearing acres.

The birds are a species of wild pigeon normally scarce in this region; but this year, through some change in migration, large flocks are sojourning here. They are protected under the game laws of the province as wild life, while most municipalities on the peninsula have a direct ban on the discharge of firearms within their limits. So the pigeons are eating their fill, and leaving ruin behind them.

Surely it must be within the competence of the provincial government to waive provisions in the Game Act temporarily in view of this demonstrated and serious loss to the fruit growers. An act of providence brought the band-tailed pigeons to the Island; must the growers wait for an act of the legislature to get rid of them in their punishing concentrations? Under the game branch or the police, the Province should be able to drive off the roving bands, or else free the landowners to do so. Laws were made for the protection of man, and not for his misery.

The same thing applies to the municipalities with regard to the discharge of firearms. Here is a patent emergency. Cannot bylaws be suspended? In a week or less the strawberry crops will be at their peak—must the wild pigeons eat the whole crop?

Some growers already have had to watch half of their strawberry crops disappear before the onslaught of the ravenous pigeons. Field after field has been left despoiled by roving bands up to 150 strong. Other crops also have been plundered by the migrants, and they are not likely to move on so long as this food holds out. Some action needs to be taken. It is up to the government to lead the way.

Interpreting the News

Infiltration Is Cited

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign Editor

THE explosions of popular unrest which toppled the government of two valued allies in the last few weeks have led the United States to take another look at its position in South Viet Nam.

South Viet Nam, like Turkey and South Korea, borders on a Communist state.

As were Turkey and South Korea, it is governed by a strong-man head of state whose this-is-for-your-own-good type of rule inevitably has aroused resentment among segments of this population.

As was the case with Turkey's ousted premier Adnan Menderes and South Korea's president Syngman Rhee, Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem, while a believer in eventual democracy for Viet Nam, also believes that now is not the time to permit any real political opposition to his regime.

Neither Turkey nor the Republic of Korea suffered from internal Communist pressures comparable to those in South Viet Nam.

From Communist North Viet Nam and through neutralist Cambodia and Laos, Communist infiltrators seep in a steady stream to South Viet Nam in a terrorist campaign which renders roads and waterways unsafe at night and keeps villages in a constant state of unrest and fear.

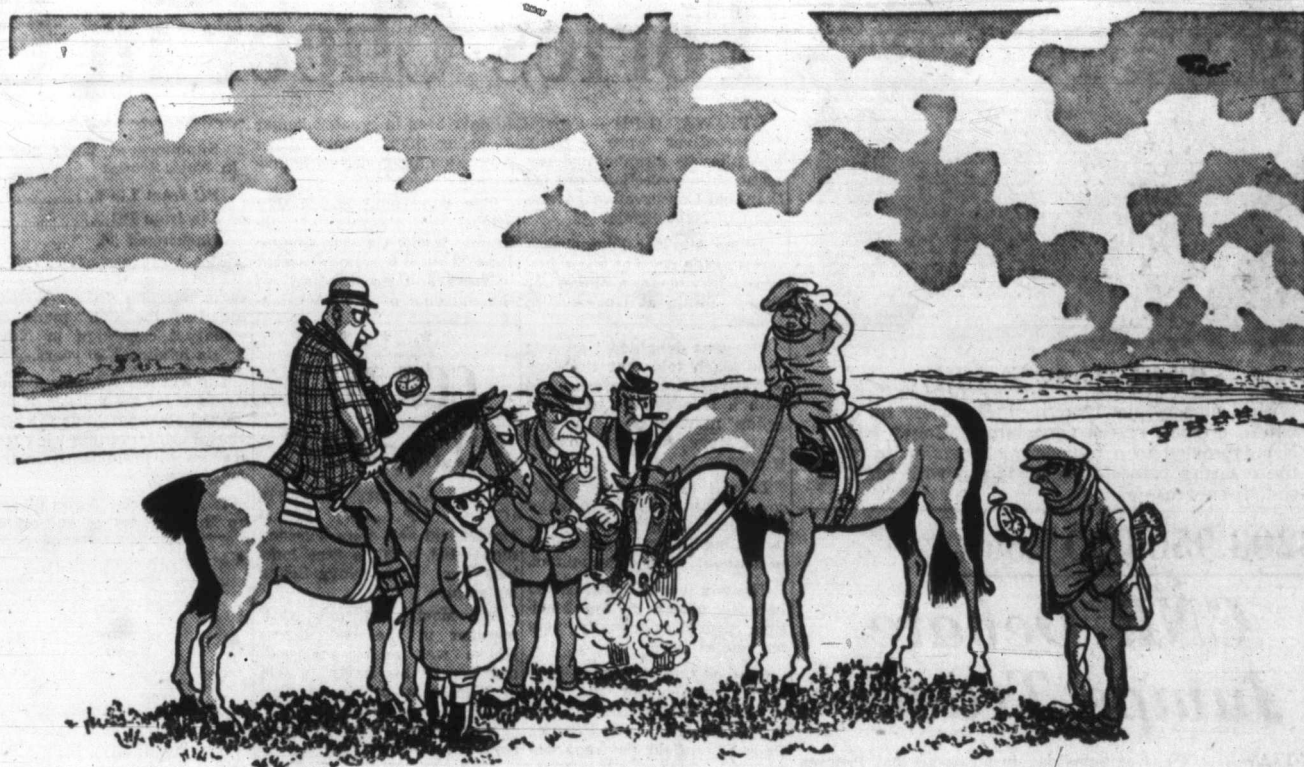

These present a danger to the Diem government and constitute his reason for firmly squashing any opposition.

United States aid to South Viet Nam amounts to about $164,000,000 annually, second only to that given the Republic of Korea.

The U.S. is firmly committed to go to the aid of South Viet Nam in the event of aggression from the outside. But it cannot guarantee against internal change.

So it is with the lessons of Turkey and Korea in mind that diplomats watch carefully the march of events in South Viet Nam.

As president, Diem has powers which exceed in his own country those wielded by President Eisenhower in the United States.

"How come at least six national newspapers tipped you to give the favourite trouble tomorrow?"

Thinking Aloud

Letter from London

"... of shoes and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THERE may be other places besides home that have their merits but the song does emphasize that what you know best you feel more at home with.

Familiarity may sometimes breed contempt but more often it induces a comforting glow of spirit.

I remember a friend once told me that until he got used to it New York on his first visit put a scare into him. Its vast excitement of people and things so shrunk him into his shell he crawled timidly among the lights and canyons of Gotham.

In time of course he began to regain his confidence, and in a few days he felt he belonged, more or less. Only then was he at ease.

He was running true to human form; all of us are at home, poised and assured, with the familiar.

A well-known novel of the thirties depicted this characteristic very vividly. It was about a neighborhood gang leader who was the panjandrum of his district. No one could wield a razor better or swing an iron chain with more lethal effect. He walked his bailiwick like a lord.

But occasionally, in the city of this novel, he had to go outside the boundary of his own district, to enter areas that neither knew him nor cared a jot about him. As a result he felt half his size. He was a foreigner in a strange land. A bully by nature, he cringed in this unknown company, all his customary bluster subdued.

Not until he returned to his own kind did he breathe a sigh of relief.

For him there was no place like home.

And for the rest of us too. We may not wield razors or even be braggarts but the reaction to strangeness is mutual. We are bigger men in our own backyard. We purr best in our own element.

It can be amusing; this effect of a familiar environment.

Suppose you call on someone at business; maybe he has a secretary or official aide whose gauntlet you must run before seeing the chief. You enter the sacred chamber composedly enough but a bit tentatively. This isn't your domain so you aren't so free and breezy as the man you have called on.

He is perfectly self-possessed.

Reverse the situation so that he calls on you. You are now in possession of the home ground and your aplomb is uppermost. If any deference is shown he shows it to you. He is the stranger in another's territory.

Even if the other person is a friend, an intimate one, there is still a slight difference in attitude on the part of the one who plays host to the other. Usually it is unconscious, but the atmosphere of familiar things gives him the advantage.

And it is reflected in his complete ease of manner.

A man enters his office or store or factory each day. If he doesn't move about as though the place belonged to him assuredly he moves as though he belonged to it. One is not filled with this mental ballast when in a strange office or factory.

The same inhibition follows one on becoming an office-holder in a club or, I daresay, in being elected to a governing body of some kind. You are a new boy for a while, learning the ropes, and until you feel thoroughly at home you hold your personality back.

After that, when you feel at ease again, you let your personality run riot and, perhaps, your colleagues wish you had remained a freshman.

ONE of the problems of modern life is to distinguish an ambassador from a politician. Very often they are one and the same person.

The main difference is that a politician should represent his party and an ambassador should represent his country. Those who have known the politician are rarely able to appreciate him as an ambassador.

That is one of the reasons why Englishmen watch a little goggle-eyed when some American tourist (and I have heard it) looks at President Roosevelt's memorial statue in Grosvenor Square and murmurs to his lady love "Fancy putting that up to that gink." It sounds like heresy.

The point is that we are looking at the man from afar. His own countryman has seen him under the microscope and did not like what he saw.

You must remember that when I report that Premier Bennett has been doing quite a remarkable job over in Britain. You may, or may not, like him as a politician but as an ambassador for British Columbia he is doing nicely.

For one thing he has shown a remarkable appreciation of the British tradition for understatement. So many premiers have come over here—from Canada and elsewhere—and told such fabulous yarns about their own particular eldorado that no one has really believed them.

Premier Bennett has been much more the shy young girl playing hard to get. He has said quite bluntly that B.C. is not desperately interested in immigrants as such—though they could take some schoolteachers, nurses and secretaries. But there was no easy road to success. Hard work would bring its rewards—but none of this sitting on your beam ends, waiting for someone to throw a fortune into your lap.

Another thing—he does not want anyone to invest money in the province on the basis of second-hand information. It is a grand country—it has splendid opportunities—but please go and see for yourself, make your own inquiries and your own assessment of the potentialities.

Another thing: don't expect any handouts; there is no question of the provincial government guaranteeing the bonds of any private company, or any special concessions. You risk your own capital.

Your end is the microscopic end. You may read all sorts of obscure and obvious politics into this, but over here it is interpreted as an example of a confident man with a valuable product which will sell itself once it has been seen. It is the "come and try it" technique with the inference that there are plenty of others if you don't want to be bothered.

Over here, in the mother and father of a welfare state, the premier has soft pedalled social security. He regards it as important on the domestic front—but not as a way of attracting the wrong kind of person to B.C. He talks of "dynamic capitalism" and obviously prefers men or women prepared to back themselves with a bit of capital.

Bluntly it has been good healthy stuff—the "drive it yourself, pull it to pieces" kind of argument—of the man with a really good automobile to sell. It costs more and you can't have it for a down payment of nothing; but it is worth the extra effort and I for one will be very surprised if there are not some rewarding results from the trip. They may not be spectacular but they will be important.

Remember too that most of the work has been unspectacular. Due partially to convalescence, public appearances have been very few and far between. There have been a lot of lunches, dinners and receptions—a few afternoon teas and cocktail parties—but they have all been angled to national rather than personal needs. And the premier has shown a great deal of resilience by his ability to relax between engagements.

The only reference to recent political events on the home front is the premier's insistence that he has no axes to grind, that he is not concerned with one company more than another. He is interested in anyone or any company prepared to invest in their own future and in the future of the province. He has no perks to offer, no special concessions—but he has a grand assortment of opportunities for those who want them.

And in the trough of an unclimbed summit, a rather contentious prime ministers' conference, he gives the impression that British Columbia is a good place to think about—and making Britain think.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

SELF-ESTEEM is as essential to human nature as breathing or eating. We all have to have it. A considerable number of us pretend to have no self-esteem at all, thus esteeming ourselves far above all our friends and neighbors because of our great humility.

Most of us base our self-esteem on our virtues. But some esteem themselves on their vices. Confirmed criminals, as any psychologist will tell you, esteem themselves not only on their successful crimes but even on the number of years they have spent in prison. I have known drunks whose self-esteem sprang from the number of times they have been drunk in a month, far drunker than anybody else you could mention.

Self-esteem can be based on prosperity, good looks, physical strength, wit, a talent such as a singing voice or the ability to play a guitar, figure skating, cooking, chess, checkers, tidily-winks.

But when you have nothing whatever on which to base your self-esteem, neither possessions nor talents nor brains nor comeliness, you can always esteem yourself for your race or creed.

And after looking for some years at those who are loudest in pride of race or creed over less blessed individuals, I am inclined to believe that they may have no other grounds for self-esteem.

Ottawa's Philharmonic

A Sin to Kill It

(From The Ottawa Journal)

IS there no way at all, even at this late hour, by which the Ottawa Philharmonic Orchestra can be saved?

We say "saved" because we fear greatly that if this splendid organization is suspended this year it may well be impossible to revive it next year, or ever. The public support which has been built up for the Philharmonic, the work, energy and enthusiasm which so many put into it, these are not things which can be turned off and on at will.

And what gain for anybody can come from suspension? There can be none, surely, for Ottawa's musicians, whose only satisfaction will be to see a higher salary scale on paper—something hardly useful at a store or a bank. And certainly there will be no gain for the increasing numbers of persons who enjoyed the Philharmonic's performances, nor the thousands of children who benefited from its concerts.

'Graduation' Farce

(From The Winnipeg Free Press)

THE decision of two senior high schools in Greater Winnipeg to have no June "graduation" ceremonies this year will be heartily endorsed by many parents.

These end-of-the-school-year affairs have no connection with graduation. Students of the senior class go through the same kind of ritual that they would if they had really graduated. But in fact they have not yet written their exams and they do not know if they will graduate or fail. What they receive is an unsigned graduation diploma that means precisely nothing.

Farcical and dishonest as this practice is—and it is beyond understanding why schools should promote it—it is not the main reason why many parents frown on "graduation" night.

It is customary after the ceremonies for the school to give a dance for senior students; and as long as the school is exercising supervision over the evening's activities parents have little to worry about.

But it has become a Winnipeg tradition that after the school dance students go on to hold all-night parties, in or out of the city. What goes on after midnight on "graduation" night undoubtedly has been much exaggerated by rumor and gossip. But parents whose children have participated in "graduation" and what comes after have learned enough to wish an end to it. They will be hoping that other high schools in Greater Winnipeg will have the courage to emulate those in Elmwood and Transcona.

Letters to the Editor

Soviet Colonialism

With the national awakening of the peoples of Asia and Africa and their longing for self-determination it is not possible any longer to refuse them the right to decide their fate.

Against this background the rise of the Soviet colonial empire appears as one of history's most bitter jokes. There can be no greater anachronism than the emergence of this empire at the time of the disappearance or transformation of the old ones. Not only does it seem a paradox that 100,000,000 peoples should be deprived of the independence, which some of them had enjoyed for a thousand years, just at a time when so many young nations are obtaining it for the first time. There is also the fact that the former colonial powers usually brought with them a superior civilization which is certainly not what Soviet rule brought to the Balts, the Czechs, the Germans, the Hungarians, the Poles, etc.

Whatever their faults the British, the French, the Belgians or the Dutch, built schools and hospitals, improved general health, helped the subject peoples to a higher standard of life. But for the millions of central and eastern Europeans the Soviet rule means a lower standard of life and until quite recently, an economic exploitation such as no Western colonialist could ever have dreamed of.

Can such a colonial empire survive the general anti-colonial trend of our time?

And if not, how can its dissolution be achieved peacefully without provoking a colossal convulsion with unpredictable consequences?

People in Poland and in other captive countries are fully aware of their real situation, but they never give way to despair. Betrayed in their cherished hopes and bitterly disappointed they still believe in the Western values of freedom, human dignity and independence.

The unyielding attitude of these nations constitutes a serious challenge to the Soviet domination. The great conflict of our time is not capitalism versus communism; it is freedom against tyranny. And freedom is indivisible. In this atomic age the world cannot live half free and half slave!

Murderous Dogs

A bad human being is restrained and a bad dog should be. Last week an unrestrained boxer dog raided my chickens, killed a poor little hen, took it away where there were other dogs who tore it apart with a lot of gleeful barking. The owner of the dog was away all day.

Some time ago three pointer dogs that were unrestrained broke the backs, mutilated and killed 14 of my hens, injuring many more, with blood streaming from their mouths, they defied me in their murderous slaughter. The police came and we picked up the dead and injured.

I have owned many a wonderful dog, like Lassie, as being a farmer and rancher I used them for sheep and cattle. I have handled huskies and a she-wolf in the north and these were hitched to a long line so they could run up and down on a pulley to a lake. But it is only the bad actor that needs a leash and a muzzle.

Church Bells Spark Mowers

Church bells ringing in the Sidney area are a signal to start power mowers rather than a call to worship, according to complaints received by village Commissioner J. H. Larocque recently.

He told the commission of these complaints last night adding, "You'd think they would at least have the decency to wait until the collection plate was passed before starting up."

Commission chairman Dr. C. H. Hemmings suggested passing a bylaw forbidding the use of power mowers until after church. No action will be taken for the time being.

Didn't Want Dirty Spying Truman Says

CHICAGO (AP) — Harry S. Truman said Monday night that while he was president he turned down a suggestion that the United States send spy planes over Communist territory.

Truman, 76, declined to express an opinion on President Eisenhower's role in the recent U-2 spy plane incident.

Gamble in Saanich?

Passmore Erupts Over Civic Centre

Smouldering opposition to plans to build a $1,000,000 civic centre between Douglas and Swan Lake erupted in Saanich council last night when Coun. Leslie Passmore charged the council is "gambling" with ratepayers' money and is "afraid" to let them vote on acquisition of land.

Coun. Passmore, only councillor opposing purchase of the 33-acre site before seeking approval of ratepayers for the civic centre, moved that council should first ask for permission to buy the land.

"If we get the approval of ratepayers you would have a council that is 100 per cent behind the public," he promised. "I figure it (new hall) will cost $1,500,000. The figure of $500,000 is ridiculous."

But council voted to begin moves to expropriate 27 acres. Agreement has been reached with owners to pay $33,000 for the other six acres.

"I think it is council's responsibility to buy the best site it can find," Reeve Chaterton said.

"Are you afraid?" Coun. Passmore challenged.

To the reeve's suggestion that Saanich could sell the land if necessary, Coun. Passmore accused the council of gambling.

"I must object to the use of the term 'gamble,'" Coun. Stanley Murphy interjected. "This is a calculated risk, not a gamble."

Saanich Leash Law Sent to Committee

Saanich council's controversial leash bylaw, to keep a tight rein on stray dogs—due for a second look last night in view of opposition from the public—was referred to council's finance committee.

A number of letters and submissions, most in favor of the new bylaw, were on the agenda for last night's meeting but it was referred to the finance committee because council was faced with a long agenda.

However, all councillors present said they were still in favor of the bylaw as it stands.

Newsboy Loses Wallet, $6.60

A 14-year-old Colonist newsboy, while collecting on his paper route last night, lost a wallet containing $4.60 in cash and a $2 cheque given him by one of his subscribers.

Coun. Harold Todd was the only member not present.

Several criticized what they described as a "watered-down version" of the bylaw proposed by the SPCA.

Five WHL Players Get Chance in Draft

Five players from Western Hockey League clubs were drafted by National Hockey League clubs yesterday while a sixth player, owned by Montreal Canadiens, was traded to Detroit Red Wings for cash plus a player to be named later.

Winnipeg Warriors were hardest hit by the annual draft, which took place on the second day of the professional hockey leagues' meeting.

They lost three defencemen and a forward, all promising youngsters brought up through junior ranks by Winnipeg owner Jack Perrin. The Warriors also announced they had sold four players to the Spokane Comets but declined to name them.

Chicago Black Hawks grabbed two players from the Warriors, claiming, for $20,000 each, defencemen Gary Bergman and leftwinger Norm Wasilowski, who was the WHL rookie of the season for 1959-60.

In a controversial selection which may not be permitted, Detroit Red Wings drafted Hank Bassen, Vancouver's all-star goalkeeper. A protest was immediately made that Bas-sen actually was on the reserve list of the Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League and was therefore not draftable.

NHL president Clarence Campbell at first said he could guarantee delivery of Bassen but after the draft meeting stated that he blamed the Vancouver and Springfield clubs for violating their own regulations by moving Bassen to the West Coast city.

The Montreal-owned Spokane player going to Detroit is Al Johnson.

Today, NHL clubs will get the chance to draft from each other, being allowed to protect only 18 players plus two goalies on their permissible reserve list of 30 players plus three goalkeepers. They cleared the decks with a series of deals.

Canadiens, as was expected, figured most heavily in the trading. Their biggest deal was with the Hawks.

The Hawks received leftwinger Al McDonald, who has been with Canyans for the past two seasons; forward Cec Hoekstra, who played last season with Rochester in the AHL, and forward Bob Courcy and defenceman Reg Fleming, who spent last season with Hull-Ottawa and Kingston, respectively, in the Eastern Professional League.

In return, the Hawks gave up Glen Skov, veteran defencive centre, forward Terry Gray, who played last season for Calgary of the WHL, and an unannounced sum of cash.

Canadiens also received options on three former WHL players who were with Buffalo last season — forwards Bob Bailey, Lorne Ferguson and Danny Lewicki.

Canadiens also swapped veteran forward Stan Smrke, with Rochester last season, to Toronto for defenceman Al MacNeil, also with Rochester during the past campaign. And to complete an active day, the Montreal club sold, for a sum in excess of $20,000, Bill Carter to Boston Bruins.

Carter, a young centre, had a 42-60 record with Hull-Ottawa last season.

Detroit sent veteran defenceman Jim Morrison to Chicago for Howie Glover, a veteran minor-league star with Cleveland of the AHL.

California Cities Get NHL Hearing

There was increasing evidence yesterday that Los Angeles and San Francisco are unlikely to ever become members of the Western Hockey League.

Both California cities are anxious to join the National Hockey League and while that time is not yet in the immediate future, they received some solace during the annual NHL meeting when it was announced that they will be considered first when expansion comes.

Meanwhile, the WHL announced from Montreal that it had approved a 70-game schedule for next season which will open on Oct. 10 and close on April 2.

League play will get underway in Winnipeg with the Warriors hosting the Calgary Stampede. Winnipeg then goes to Calgary to open the season there on Oct. 13.

West Coast openers are scheduled on Oct. 14, with Seattle at Victoria and Spokane at Vancouver. The following night, Victoria and Vancouver will play at Seattle and Spokane, respectively.

be scheduled on Fridays or holidays will be on Tuesday nights.

Opening game in Portland, the new WHL city, will be delayed until Nov. 15 to allow time for completion of Portland's new arena. The WHL will operate as a single unit for purposes of standings.

Regarding the application of San Francisco and Los Angeles for NHL entry, the cities were represented by G. E. Kinsey, A. E. England and W. H. Nicholas of Los Angeles and Nye Wilson of San Francisco.

After the meeting, the NHL issued the following statement:

"The war years retarded the development of hockey players but the governors feel that this predicament is rapidly diminishing and in the foreseeable future available players of NHL calibre will make expansion not only feasible but practical."

"The governors were pleased to have these representatives attend their meeting and the situation will be revised from season to season."

"It was almost enough to send the California delegates back home in a hopeful frame of mind."

Eye Exam Stops Valdes Fight

TORONTO (CP)—A heavy-weight bout between Canadian champion George Chuvalo and Cuba's Nino Valdes was called off Tuesday, six hours before fight time, when an eye specialist reported Valdes can hardly see out of his left eye.

The cancellation was announced by Merv McKenzie, Ontario athletic commissioner, after he received the report of the specialist.

McKenzie said the report indicated the 35-year-old Valdes was practically "a one-eyed fighter."

The 10-rounder had been scheduled as the main event of a special card at Maple Leaf Gardens. Word of McKenzie's decision caused promoters to call off the entire card.

At the noon weigh-in Chuvalo, 28-year-old Toronto star, checked in at 220 pounds, Valdes at 217 1/2.

Dr. Thomas Flommerfelt asked Valdes to read the ordinary eye charts in the office as part of the examination and then ordered the boxer to go to a specialist for a further exam.

McKenzie said the specialist reported that Valdes cannot see any appreciable distance with his left eye and is unable to see anything coming at him from the left side. A caraccat caused by an old ring injury was blamed.

McKenzie said Valdes has been examined in recent months for bouts in Europe and the United States and had passed. "But he certainly couldn't pass the exam here."

Valdes who began his pro career in 1941, has had 69 fights. He has 47 victories, including 34 knockouts, and two draws. His 20 losses included five by knockouts.

Proceeds will go into a fund to aid the young Victoria musician's further training, possibly as an organ scholar at an English university.

Public Execution Of Dog Called Off

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — An unnamed, honey-colored mongrel received a pardon Tuesday, only hours before he was to be publicly executed so it could be decided whether or not the city's electrical execution chamber is humane.

The pup's owner, a Mr. Sweet, recognized him in the daily paper and claimed him from the city dog pound.

Those concerned with the scheduled execution seemed relieved.

"He's a lovely little dog," said Mayor Beth Wood.

Tom Hughes, provincial director of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, had already objected to the execution as a "sordid publicity gimmick."

The execution was scheduled when Mr. Hughes complained to city council that the electrocution apparatus made dogs suffer excruciating pain for three to 12 seconds before death.

He said new apparatus costing $150 would solve the problem.

Nonconformists

Strike Stalls 42 Shows On Broadway

NEW YORK (UPI) — Producers announced Tuesday 42 new plays and musicals scheduled to open this fall have been postponed indefinitely because of a contract dispute with Actors Equity that has blacked out the Broadway stage.

Nonconformist artist sisters Maisie, left, and Alice Glenny had everybody talking at exhibition preview in Royal Academy at London, England. Short haircuts, bobby socks and tulips on sweatshirts are identical; Maisie wears glasses and Alice carries umbrella so nonconformists won't conform with each other.

Indian Superstition

Murder Trial Jury Hears Of Medicine Man's 'Magic'

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP) — An Indian accused of the murder of his half-brother following a home-brew party Nov. 29 testified Tuesday he couldn't remember what happened that night because he was drunk.

Francis Billy, 20, testified on his own behalf before Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson and an all-male assize court jury.

He is charged with the knifing of Felix Billy, 30, on the Chezacut Indian reserve, 85 miles southwest of here.

Francis said he didn't know if he had killed Felix. However, he had not seen him for a long time before the party and had wanted to see him because he liked him.

Indian superstition came into the case through a number of witnesses.

On Monday, Bobby Billy, father of both the deceased and accused, told of burning the furniture from the cabin where Felix returned to die after being stabbed, so that his spirit could not walk. He also lit fires along the hillside by his cabin.

Frank Shillaker, a white man who operates a trading post at Chezacut, said the Chezacut people still believe and practice pagan rites. He spoke of Bobby Billy's father, a medicine man known as Lame Bill.

Shillaker told of one time when a number of forest fires were burning in the hills nearby. Lame Bill came to his trading post and told him he had put a bear's head in the creek. He said he would pronounce certain words and the rain would start at a certain hour.

Shillaker said the rain did start. In fact, he said, Lame Bill was worried about stopping it because he couldn't find the bear's head.

Courtroom Parade

Students' Party Raided, RCMP Charge Nine

High school graduation parties last weekend apparently had only one police court aftermath—result of a raid by Colwood RCMP on a beach party Saturday night at Albert Head.

Liquor and nuisance charges were laid against nine persons.

Police said between 75 and 100 young Victorians were at the party. When police arrived, many left in cars, only to be checked by other officers on a highway above the beach.

Two youths were charged with creating a disturbance and with being minors in possession of liquor; two young adults with drinking in a public place; five other youths with being minors in possession of liquor.

Only one has appeared in court to date. On Monday he pleaded guilty before Magistrate A. I. Thomas to creating a disturbance and having beer in his possession, and was fined $25 on each charge.

Pleading guilty to impaired driving, David Kenny, 1927 Quamichan, was fined $250 in Oak Bay police court yesterday, and his licence was suspended. He had been checked by police on McNeil Avenue.

Harry Curtis, no fixed address, was sentenced to 45 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to vagrancy. What prosecutor T. P. O'Grady called "an astonishing record in view of his age (40)" was introduced to court. It included 50 previous summary convictions and 13 indictable offences.

Girl, 15, Watches Murder-Suicide

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — Seven children were orphaned Tuesday by a murder-suicide in a South Burnaby home where a 15-year-old girl watched her father shoot himself after he had slain his wife.

The dead were identified as Ernest Lawrence Beeststone, a 38-year-old metal worker, and his wife, Jessie, 33.

OLDEST CHILD

Their oldest child, Sarah, told police she heard a shot about 1 a.m., ran into the kitchen to find her mother shot dead and then saw her father kill himself with a bullet in the head from a .303 rifle.

Sarah told police she remained calm as she herded her six brothers and sisters back upstairs to their bedrooms to keep them from the scene.

CALLED POLICE

Then she called police. Sarah, a brother and four-month-old baby were taken to the home of RCMP Corporal B. R. Bertram.

The other four, all boys, were taken to Burnaby social welfare department.

WAR BRIDE

Sarah told police her mother, a British war bride, had been ill and Sarah had stayed home from school to look after her and three of the youngsters not yet of school age.

Since May 1 she had done the washing, ironing and cooking.

Monday night the mother was feeling better and the family had company in. There was some drinking and the mother asked Sarah to stay up with her because she was afraid of her husband. He had threatened the mother once before with a gun and Sarah had taken the gun from him.

Sarah said that before 1 a.m. she was sitting beside her mother on the chesterfield when the parents began to argue.

She said she left the room to look at one of the younger children and heard her father say: "I know a solution to all this."

She said she heard a shot, returned to the room and saw her father look at the dead woman and ask: "Did I shoot you Jess?" then before Sarah could stop him he placed the gun under his chin and shot himself.

Made Homeless by Fires

What Now? Families Ask

Two families in the lower Vancouver Island area, made homeless by fires within the past few days, have not yet decided what move to make next.

William Ferriday, married

and father of two children, borrowed a house trailer from a friend after the family's home at 2225 Arbutus was extensively damaged by fire, smoke and water when the cedar shingle roof burned Monday night.

The family will remain at the site until it is learned whether or not their seven-room home can be repaired. They salvaged enough clothing to meet their needs.

Nora Cameron and her four children moved temporarily into the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grey Moseley, 1½ miles west of Glen Lake, after their Sooke Road home burned to the ground Saturday. Her husband, Tom Destrube, arrow, of Brentwood Bay, Destrube, who

Reeve Gets
'Crisis'
Powers

Saanich council last night gave Reeve George Chatterton emergency powers to impose water restrictions in the municipality this summer if a critical situation arises.

Similar powers were granted last year although no restrictions were imposed.

Mr. Chatterton commented that with the unusually wet spring this year he felt it unlikely that any serious shortage of water would develop.

Fastest-handed motion at Saanich council meeting last night took less than five seconds from the time Reeve George Chatterton called for it and when it was unanimously passed.

When he noticed that the sinking sun was shining through windows into the eyes of clerk Gordon Hayward, Mr. Chatterton suggested someone might move that blinds be installed as soon as possible.

Someone cried out "So move." Someone else seconded the motion and Mr. Chatterton wrapped it up with:

"All those in favor - all those - against - carried."

Esquimalt Powerless
In Boulevard Issue

Esquimalt council, informed earlier in the week it has no power to force residents to maintain boulevards outside their homes, decided last night to leave the matter up to the people themselves.

After checking maintenance figures for Victoria and Oak Bay, council decided that municipal maintenance would prove too expensive. Instead, a motion was passed "to continue to solicit the support of residents in keeping their boulevards cut and generally serviced."

Council also supported a request by the intermunicipal committee to send a letter to the B.C. Telephone Company asking that the directories be published twice a year instead of once, and that the street names no longer be abbreviated.

Ready Soon

A new draft of a sign bylaw for the city is expected to be submitted late this week or early next week to a special committee including Ald. Rev. J. L. W. McLean and sign company representatives.

Assistant city engineer Rodrick Clark was instructed to prepare the new draft after sign companies attacked a previous draft as too restrictive and public works committee rejected it.

The new draft will be submitted later to public works committee.

Police Won't Step Up Charges
To Ease Saanich Money Loss

Although Saanich revenue from fines and court costs is below the estimated amount, police will not step up their activity in an attempt to have more persons charged with offences, Reeve George Chatterton said last night.

He made the promise when Coun. Leslie Passmore criticized council's practice of including in its budget each year a figure representing the estimated income from fines and costs.

More than $40,000 was entered in the 1960-61 budget as

Rates
'Fair'

The unorganized areas served by the Greater Victoria water board have no representation on the board because they have no investment in the water supply system, Mayor Percy Scurrell said yesterday.

The mayor, chairman of the water board, was replying to A. J. Cottyn, president of the Colwood and District Chamber of Commerce, who said Monday the chamber is planning a strong protest to the Public Utilities Commission against a board application for an increase in rates beyond the Greater Victoria municipal boundaries.

REPRESENTATION

Mr. Cottyn claimed the unorganized areas should have representation on the board, and also held that the board should be receiving sufficient money from watershed logging profits and a rural rate increase two years ago.

"The unorganized areas have no investment in the water system whatever, and the municipalities have," Mayor Scurrell said.

HAVE TO BUILD

"We don't want to increase the rates, but the increase is necessary to finance the tunnel, and we are using logging profits to pay as much cash as possible—perhaps $600,000 or $700,000 if log prices stay up."

PUC-APPROVED

To Mr. Cottyn's claim that "they can make all the regulations they like and we have nothing we can do about it," the mayor replied that regulations and rate schedules for the unorganized areas had to be approved by the PUC.

"We're not charging any more than is absolutely necessary and fair," he said.

The board increased the wholesale rate it charges its member municipalities 30 per cent from the beginning of this year.

The estimate, Coun. Passmore said, and to date only $11,000 has been raised.

Film Sent To Toronto

A roll of color film which could prove conclusively whether Cecil Rawlings survived the crash of his business partner's aircraft was taken by jet to Toronto for processing yesterday.

RCMP expect to learn by 1 p.m. today what the partially exposed film shows.

They said that although there were processing facilities available in Victoria and Seattle there was no guarantee the color would not eventually fade and for this reason it had been decided to send the film to the manufacturers in Toronto for processing.

Rawlings' camera was found some 1,200 feet from the wreckage, near a bed of leaves which he might have used.

If the film has shots of the wreckage, it will prove Rawlings got out of the crash alive.

Saanich Area
Fly-Plagued

Inefficient septic tank disposal fields, which make parts of Saanich potential health hazards, have caused a dangerous infestation of flies in the 4100 block Birtles Avenue, Saanich council learned last night.

"It is considered that a health problem arises from the fly propagation in this area," a report from Dr. A. N. Beattie, health officer, said. He said the fly, a moth fly, breeds in sewage filters and sewage-soaked ground.

BY CONTACT

He said that although the fly does not attack food as does the common, household fly, it can still transfer diseases to food by contact.

He suggested that the area concerned should be sprayed with DDT and oil. The oil is designed to cover a nearby slough which could become a breeding ground for mosquitoes in summer.

STOP SATURATION

The only permanent control measure against the moth fly is to stop the saturation of ground with effluent, Dr. Beattie's report said. He suggested draining of the slough as a permanent means of stopping mosquito infestation.

Council instructed Dr. Beattie to arrange for the spraying of the area.

Recently, Reeve George Chatterton said preliminary reports from a municipality-wide survey indicated there were a number of small-lot subdivisions in Saanich which were potential health hazards.

He said the council would be forced to install sewers with or without the approval of ratepayers in some areas to abate the danger.

Got a Mule?
—Weight Him

Mule and horse owners should not bring their animals into Sidney without having a 16-pound metal weight to tie them to should they wish to park.

In non-legal language this was part of the text of a Sidney village traffic and parking bylaw which received final reading at the commission meeting last night. Reading of the bylaw took more than 15 minutes.

Esquimalt
To Protest
Water Hike

A brief protesting an increase in water rates proposed by the city water commissioner and approved by city council will be submitted to the Public Utilities Commission by Esquimalt council.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele reported following last night's council meeting that he, municipal clerk Jack Allan and the municipality's solicitors would form a committee to complete the brief.

'If She Wants It'

Price No Deterrent When Woman Decides

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jane Derby, the award-winning designer, recently remarked that "price doesn't matter when a woman goes shopping. If she wants a dress, she gets it."

Mrs. Derby must be right—if the price tags on some of the fall and winter dress-up clothes are any indication of what Miss and Mrs. America plan to plunk down for new wardrobes.

Manufacturers showing their collections to buyers and reporters reel off costs which would deflate the bank account of a rajah, and when a manufacturer remarks that "that's nine ninety five" as a model walks through his showroom, he means $995, wholesale. Double the figure to get the approximate retail cost.

COAT SOARS
Some of the price quotations floating around Seventh Avenue are fantastic. For instance, $475 wholesale for a white, satin evening dress covered from collar to hemline with scroll embroidery. The matching coat soars up to $635 wholesale.

Or, up to $875 for a white, floor-length evening coat with a shawl collar of fox. Still higher... a black silk chiffon sheath embroidered over all with gold bugle beads, priced at $1,200 wholesale. Yet these prices are quoted as casually as if all of us owned oil wells.

But the garment industry knows that—somewhere in these United States there are women who can afford to pay $2,000 for a conversation-stopping costume. It isn't creating these museum pieces to hang on racks.

The lavish evening clothes come high for two major reasons—fabrics have never been so luxurious, or trim so abundant.

Basic fabrics in evening clothes include brocades, silk damaskes, sheer laces, satins, chiffons, peau de soles, and imported velvets.

PAVING ADDS
But the basic luxury isn't sufficient. Designers cover dresses in bugle beads, sequins, sequins and paillettes. All this paving adds to the price.

Then, there are the furs used for trim. One manufacturer boasted that nine natural fox skins went into the trim of one evening coat, which wholesaled at $875.

Costumes drip with costly mink, sable and fisher trim. The other news in evening fashions for fall is the predominance of the skinny silhouette. There are still full-skirted, grand occasion gowns. But the slim sheath, both short and floor length, dominates.

In color, white and pastels outdo the richer jewel shades.

Sunday School Class Serves at Reception

White stock and snapdragon decorated St. Paul's Naval Garrison Church on Saturday afternoon for the wedding of Eleanor Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilson, Admiral's Road, and Mr. Michael Douglas Kendall, son of Dr. and Mrs. G. Douglas Kendall, Sinclair Road.

Rev. J. A. Roberts officiated and Master David Palmer played the bride's favorite hymn "Praise My Soul the King of Heaven."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a cocktail length dress of white peau de sole that she designed for herself. The bodice was plain and the skirt was fully gored with box pleats. White orchids and mauve gladioli formed her bouquet and a tiara of seed pearls and rhinestones held her shoulder veil.

Mrs. G. Buch was matron of honor, Miss Nancy Kendall, sister of the groom, and Miss Velma Tilley were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of nylon chiffon mauve and green floral print with V necklines and full skirts posed over green taffeta. Sweetpeas and fern formed their bouquets.

Mr. W. D. Whelen was best man and Mr. W. Wilson and Mr. James Sherratt showed guests to their seats.

A garden reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. Wilson, wearing an avocado green sheath and matching linen duster and Mrs. Kendall in a beige silk shantung sheath assisted in receiving.

The wedding cake, made by the bride's mother and decorated by Mike Ferraro of Nanaimo, centred the refreshment table. Serving the buffet luncheon were members of Miss Wilson's Sunday School class. Pouring tea were Mrs. H. Benny, Mrs. William Whelen, Mrs. F. Wilson and Mrs. W. Aylsworth.

Leaving for a honeymoon in Portland, Oregon, the new Mrs. Kendall wore a brown brocade sheath dress with three quarter length coat and peach rose corsage. On their return they will reside at 481 Kerr Avenue.

Unholy Myth
Victoria Social Worker Blasts Belief in Power

HALIFAX (CP)—A Victoria social worker Tuesday described as an "unholy myth" the Western world's belief in power as a deterrent against war.

Rosemary Hamilton of the Victoria Family and Children's Bureau said no one is ever restrained from an anti-social act by threats of violence. Hostility always had and always would provoke hostility.

She said social workers long ago should have attempted to explode "the unholy myth of deterrence... and should bluish that we have not yet protested against this barbaric belief."

Mrs. Hamilton made her comments during a group discussion on the role of the social worker as a crusader. The discussion was part of Tuesday's activity at the Canadian Conference on Social Work here.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a grandmother who is writing to ask if I am a dim-witted old lady who raised her five children wrong. When I see what is happening in my son's home, with his three, it is apparent that someone is terribly confused. This is what happened last Sunday:

Jimmy, who will be five years old in July, was walking around the living room in his pyjamas. It was 11 p.m. and several guests were present. His father suggested (after the boy had stuffed his mouth with peanuts and cocktail crackers) that he go to bed. His mother said with a shrug, "He'll go to bed when he's tired."

One of the guests suggested turning on the TV to see a special news broadcast. My son turned on the set and Jimmy went over to the guest and said, "Get out of the chair so I can sit here."

The guest was nonplussed, but actually got up and moved. About 10 minutes later the guests left—peevish. My son said, "Jimmy, dear, you should not have asked the guest to move. It's all right to ask Mommy or Daddy to move, but not a guest."

I'd like your opinion, Ann. Is it? —KNOW NOTHING.

Dear Know Nothing: When parents write to me, disillusioned and heartbroken because their grown children show no respect or ignore them completely, it's because when those kids were young, they were permitted to sass adults, walk all over their parents and shove them out of chairs.

These unfortunate children who grow up with the notion that the world is going to move over for them, find it very tough going, indeed.

Dear Ann: My younger brother is the baby of the family. He's 12 and gets away with things I could never pull off.

Two weeks ago he brought home a foot-long baby alligator. Mom said he could keep "Doll Baby" in the bathtub temporarily.

Every time one of us wants to take a bath we have to take the alligator out by the tail and put it in a pail. I'm getting pretty sick of all this, and so is my sister.

My aunt was over last night and she almost fainted. No one told her about "Doll Baby." She came running down the stairs screaming, "There's a monster in your bathtub!" My father laughed his head off—thought it was real funny.

I fail to see the humor in it. What is your opinion? —NO YAKS.

Dear No Yaks: An alligator is out of place in the family bathtub. And this is no fit surprise to spring on a guest. I don't want to plant any ideas in your little head but does Mom have an alligator handbag?

Dear Ann: Why would a man carry a picture in his wallet of his wife who is dead, instead of his present wife (me)?

We were married two years ago and are happy. He has four children by his first wife and I've been very good to them. We also have a baby of our own.

Every time I see his wallet on the dresser I get a hurt feeling. Shall I mention it to him? —SECOND WIFE.

Dear Second: Say nothing. Your husband cannot bring himself to replace his first wife's picture because he probably has faint feelings of guilt. Widows and widowers who remarry sometimes experience this. It doesn't mean he doesn't love you, it only means the wounds haven't healed completely.

One day he'll make the change on his own. Wait.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you read Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

West Indies Set Summer Styles

PARIS — The chic thing to do this summer is to take a trip to the West Indies, at least fashionwise.

With Princess Margaret honeymooning in the Caribbean Sea, romantic girls, now jump on the bandwagon by adopting the colorful fashions of the West Indies for the next-best available beach. Paris designer Jacques Heim is leading the exotic new trend by showing play-clothes and beach-wear for those who want to travel... if only in their dreams.

Heim has one new style inspired by the West Indies which will prove practical anywhere. It is a "sea-coat," a knee-length garment, short and as loose as a Mother Hubbard shirt. Sleeveless it is trimmed with a deep fringe around the knees.

Typical Jamaica styles, made in Paris, are boldly striped tunics, to be worn with shorts on the beach and with long pants for lounging. With all these exotic clothes Heim shows wide, gold-metal slave-rings worn on the right ankle. You can give any of your beach clothes a West Indies touch by wearing a huge, high-crowned sombrero sun-hat. French girls who even in Paris don't go in much for hats for street-wear are going crazy over beach hats, the bigger and funnier the better. The smartest way to wear a high-crowned wide-brimmed straw hat when on holidays is Cuba style. First you knot a cotton or chiffon kerchief over the hair. Drape it under the chin and fasten it at the nape of the neck. Then you simply plop the hat on top of it.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By EDITH HENRY

Judging by the families seen on the highways, travelling by car with children is popular.

It does allow privacy. You can sing together as you go along, stop when you wish, and certainly the food situation is under better control.

Seasoned travellers stress careful thinking and preparation as the secret of a successful and happy trip.

Decide first whether you will travel by night or day. Your decision will be influenced by the length of trip, the time you wish to arrive, and the possible or impossible behavior of the children.

If the youngest member of the party is at the crawling, climbing stage you will be more relaxed travelling when Junior is asleep.

Simply lift him from his own bed to the car bed. The immediate motion will help him to settle down again.

You may, however, wish older children to see points of interest as you go along.

It may be possible to combine both advantages by starting in the late afternoon or the very early morning.

One family took juice and a cookie, started out at once, and breakfasted after going a distance. This helped them to leave a tidier house, and saved time in travelling, and gave the children a break in the long journey.

Packing the car with foresight is a "must." Keep a list for a few days ahead of the things you use in the regular home routine.

Add to this changes needed in travelling — paper towels, paper bags for waste, damp cloths for faces and fingers, and a first aid kit, just in case. Put these things within easy reach.

Plan to pack the car when the children are in the house asleep. Their eager help is confusing.

Bags, blankets can go in the space in front of the back seat. On top place the crib mattress, sheeted. This makes excellent play and sleeping quarters.

Baby's bassinette enattress on the front seat will relieve mother of holding the child in her arms.

The annual garden party to be given by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church at the Caroline Macklem Home will be held on Wednesday, June 15 from 2 to 5 p.m. at the home, 1322 Rockland Avenue. Looking forward to the event are,

Mrs. Norah Frederickson, left, matron, Mrs. E. M. Hooper, general convener, Mrs. Madge Collinson, who is 93 years of age, one of the oldest members at the home and Mrs. E. C. Head, chairman of the home board of governors.—(Ryan Bros. Studio.)

Bride Wears Orange Blossom Picked in Parents' Garden

A bride at St. John's Anglican Church, last Saturday, was Patricia Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter White, 3821 Miramonte Drive.

At an afternoon ceremony conducted by Canon George Biddle, she exchanged vows with Mr. David Robert Duke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Duke of Victoria.

A long wedding dress of Japanese brocade with French lace trimming the scooped neckline, was chosen by the bride. Fresh orange blossom picked in her parent's garden formed a headdress holding her veil.

Pink roses and stephanotis were in her bouquet.

Matching dresses of cornflower blue nylon over taffeta with lace jackets were worn by the bridesmaids, Misses Jane White and Margaret Duke. Their headresses were net and they carried pink carnations.

Mr. Gerry Dick was best man, Mr. Dave McClintock and Mr. Peter White, brother of the bride, acted as ushers.

Mr. Hugh R. Stephen proposed the toast at a reception held at the home of the bride's parents.

The new Mrs. Duke changed into a floral orange brocade suit with beige accessories, for going away. The couple left for a honeymoon driving into the United States.

On their return they will live at Campbell River.

ST. CHAD'S

St. Chad's Anglican Church WA will meet on Thursday, June 9, at 8 p.m. in the church hall, off Majestic Drive.

Dolores Woods Wed At Cadboro Bay

A reception at Uplands Golf Club followed the marriage of Dolores Woods and Mr. Robert Neville Brown.

The wedding took place in St. George the Martyr Church, Cadboro Bay, with Rev. W. Hills, conducting the service. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Woods, 2915 Hobbs Road. Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Brown are parents of the groom.

A floor-length gown of Chantilly lace in rose design was chosen by the bride. The neckline was outlined with lace flowers.

A silk band with a small bow accented the empire line of the bodice which billowed into a hooped skirt. A head-dress of seed pearls held the bride's veil. And she carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and carnations.

Maid of honor, Miss Anyrue Beere held a colonial bouquet of similar flowers. She wore a ballerina-length gown of pale blue chiffon and matching headpiece.

Mr. Denis Cullimore was best man. Ushers were Mr. Garry Dickinson, Victoria, and Mr. Kenneth Elder of Vancouver.

Mr. G. Lewis proposed the toast to the bride at the reception.

A two-piece suit of willow green with shoes and bag in tone and beige hat and gloves, were the going away outfit of the new Mrs. Brown.

After a motoring honeymoon trip in the United States the newlyweds will make their home in Vancouver.

Garden Notes

Handle with Care

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Once again I am beginning to experience the annual influx of letters reporting injury and sometimes death of plants due to 2, 4-D poisoning. These readers seldom know what has gone wrong and usually fear that some horribly infectious plant disease is rampant in their gardens, but their description of leaves curling upward around their edge and becoming twisted and distorted is an unmistakable symptom of the damage caused by drifting fumes of weed-killer.

Sometimes these gardeners are responsible for their own misfortunes. Sometimes the lethal fumes have come from a careless weedkilling job perhaps half a block away. It is remarkable how far this stuff can travel under the right atmospheric conditions and, in one classic instance, the destruction of a cotton crop in Texas was traced to an aerial spray job 20 miles away!

Selective weedkillers are wonderfully efficient and convenient, and have taken all the old backbreaking work out of the job of weeding the front lawn. For my money, 2, 4-D is one of the truly great chemical discoveries of the 20th century, and there is no reason why we shouldn't use it if proper precautions are taken to keep the stuff from spreading injury to cultivated plants. The first rule in my book is never to apply it with a sprayer.

Only too often one sees a home gardener swooshing great gobs of weedkiller all over the landscape with a pneumatic sprayer, nozzle held high to get the widest possible coverage of the lawn under treatment. In about three days, the leaves of plants and shrubs down wind will start curling up into corkscrews and neighbors will be arriving with blood in their eyes, demanding satisfaction.

Pneumatic sprayers, hose attachments and even those little tin hand pumps all have one common fault—they deliver the weedkiller in a fine, misty spray which will drift out of bounds even in the lightest breeze. The solution should always be applied in the form of rather coarse droplets and with the applicator held close to the ground. And ordinary watering can would serve, but you have to decontaminate it after use by washing with a hot soda solution, with repeated rinsings, which is more trouble than it is worth.

A better plan is to buy one of those inexpensive plastic gadgets designed to screw on the neck of a one-gallon vinegar jug. Held with the jug upside down, the weedkiller-fluid is fed by gravity to the plastic nozzle, close to the ground, where it delivers droplets coarse enough to stay put and not blow into adjoining territory. You supply your own jug, and this can be reserved exclusively for weed-killing operations so that no decontamination is necessary.

Rather more expensive but very safe and effective is a log-like affair made of hard wax impregnated with weedkiller and sold under such names as Wonder Bar. The heavy bar is dragged over the lawn with ropes or cords and the wax rubbing off on the leaves of the weeds does a neat job with very little danger of drifting fumes.

Another safe applicator is the Killer Kane. This is a hollow plastic tube, rather like a thick walking stick, which holds about a quart of weedkiller solution. It has a spring tip which, when pressed down on a clump of weeds, discharges a circle of droplets sufficient to wet the leaves and bring about their death. While hardly suitable for a really serious weed infestation, it is ideal for spot-treating the occasional interloper in the lawn.

Errol Missed 'Last Loves'

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—How is this for a bevy of beauties in the same film: Brigitte Bardot, Anita Ekberg and Silvana Mangano! The name of the movie?—"The Last Loves of Don Juan." Only person missing, says director Gerold Oswald, is Errol Flynn—"It would have been a marvellous swan song for Errol."

For the first time in history, two adults—Tony Randall and Archie Moore—have succeeded in stealing a film from a child star, in Sam Goldwyn's "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn."

Denise Darcel tells me that, when she was in Washington, D.C., recently, her hat blew off—and the man who retrieved it for her was Vice President Nixon.

Debra Paget, off to Rome to make "Goliath and the Dragon," will return in time to answer the suit of her former landlady who wants $15,000 for alleged damage to the big, rambling house Debra rented in Beverly Hills. It seems there are rhinestones, sequins and some fancy murals that won't rub off.

Very curious clause between the "Studs Lonigan" film producers and author James Farrell. Unless the movie is shown before mid-June, the rights revert to Farrell. So they are racing madly to get it into a theatre within a week.

Mrs. Gregory Peck was smarter than Sophia Loren. Mrs. Peck's jewels and furs, stolen from the house Greg rented near Ascot, were all insured.

The "Oscar Wilde" movie starring Peter Finch will not be shown in London's West End. It's a shame, because Peter received better reviews than the rival "Oscar Wilde," Robert Morley.

Comedian Joey Adams has been in Hollywood, talking to oldtime vaudeville stars like the Rita Brothers, Chico Marx and Bud Abbott, trying to persuade them to go out on the road six weeks a year, to help bring back live entertainment. "You've all put yourselves out to pasture in California," Joey admonished them.

Loretta Young is planning a TV series based on a story by Joseph Laidla published in the Ladies' Home Journal two years ago. She has filmed the half-hour pilot, and NBC is excited about it; hopes to sell it for the fall. The pilot stars Loretta's brother-in-law, Ricardo Montalban, and Loretta does not appear in it.

Wilfred Hyde White, 58-year-old actor in "Let's Make Love," completed his final scene with Marilyn Monroe and jetted to New York with his young wife. "I'm rather grateful for the five weeks off due to the strike," said Wilfred, explaining, "my wife's going to have our second child in January."

Mike Todd Jr. and his glamorous stepmother Elizabeth Taylor, have a musical version of "Around the World in 80 Days" on the planning board for London. Says Mike: "The ideal cast would be Cyril Ritchard as Phineas Fogg, David Wayne or John Mills as Passepartout, and Sally Ann Howes." In the part played by Shirley MacLaine in the movie. Ace songwriter Harold Adamson is taking care of the music.

Marsha Hunt, who plays Jeff Chandler's wife in "The Plunderers," has adopted a Chinese girl, Chan Kai Yen, 7, in Hong Kong. "We shall pay for her clothes, support and schooling until she is old enough to come here," said Marsha, in private life Mrs. Robert Fressnell.

Show Business

By Dick Williams

Today "Prince" Mike Romanoff is a posh restaurateur, owner of flossy establishments in Beverly Hills and Palm Springs. Few remember he once had a movie career of sorts.

One of the pictures he appeared in was "Arch of Triumph," a multi-million-dollar bomb starring Ingrid Bergman. One of the scenes featured the late Louis Calhern, a towering figure who stood over six-foot-three, as a doorman and Mike as a restaurateur of an expensive Paris boite.

Director Lewis Milestone took one look at Calhern's imposing height and Romanoff's abbreviated stature and called for a box for self-styled nobleman Romanoff to stand upon.

"I should say no!" snapped Mike when the box arrived. "Let Calhern stand in a hole. His monstrosity merely accents my normalcy."

The 'London Look'

Traffic, and passersby, stopped in Toronto when model Cynthia Doucette brought to Canada the "London Look," short, billowy dresses flaring out from waist and stopping high above knees. Fad started when London dress shop put super-short skirts on its dummy models as a new way to catch eyes of window shoppers.

Win Three More Seats

Liberal Leader Beaten

Tories Again Sweep Nova Scotia

Cabinet Members Re-elected

HALIFAX (CP) — The Progressive Conservative government of Nova Scotia won an overwhelming endorsement from the electors Tuesday.

(See also Page 3.)

"My party realizes the great responsibility that we have and we are gratefully thankful for the new mandate given us," Premier Robert L. Stanfield said in Truro, where he got results in his own constituency of Colchester. He won easily over Liberal and CCF candidates.

Final CP Standing
	1956 1958
Prog. Con.	27 24
Liberals	15 18
CCF	1 1
Total	43 43

All Mr. Stanfield's cabinet ministers were re-elected with him. The Progressive Conservative group in 43-seat House will number 27, three more than after the 1956 election.

The Liberals, 18-strong four years ago, now have 15 members in the House. The CCF, as in 1956, elected one.

PERSONAL DEFEAT

Liberal Leader Henry Hicks, who suffered personal defeat in Annapolis East, said he plans to take a weekend trip before deciding his future. Hanson T. Dowell, a former president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, won Mr. Hicks' seat for the Conservatives by 14 votes. A recount is in prospect.

Kentville Mayor Gladys Porter became the first woman ever elected to the legislature. She won for the Progressive Conservatives in Kings North.

POSED QUESTION

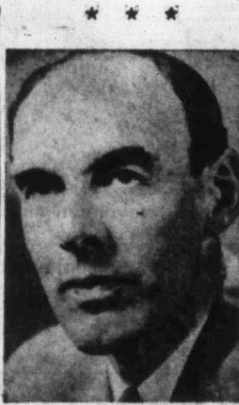

The sweeping Conservative victory posed the question of leadership of the Liberal party, which Mr. Hicks won at a bitterly-fought 1954 party convention. He succeeded the late Angus L. Macdonald, premier from 1933 until 1954 except for a period of wartime service in the federal cabinet.

Mr. Hicks expressed surprise at the defeat of Liberal financial critic Ronald M. Fielding in Halifax Northwest.

EXPRESSED SURPRISE

"How close can you come?" he asked. "He loses by 17 votes, myself by 14."

CCF Leader Michael Macdonald was the only member elected by his party. He has represented Cape Breton Centre in the House since 1945. The other 33 CCF candidates generally trailed but drew a much larger share of the popular vote than in 1956 when their 11 candidates gained only three per cent.

PREMIER STANFIELD

BAFFLING CLUES CONFRONT ROUND-THE-CLOCK SEARCH

Fear Some Following Tracks of Other Searchers

By PETER BRUTON and ALEC MERRIMAN

Ten days after a light Seabee aircraft slammed into a Nitinat Lake mountainside the search for its missing passenger went onto a 24-hour, around-the-clock basis after a day in which more baffling and inconclusive clues to his whereabouts were unearthed.

It is now apparent that the 300-man army of searchers in the dense, dank timber country 70 miles north of Victoria have in some cases mistaken signs and tracks left by other searchers as evidence that the missing Victoria taxi owner Cecil Rawlings had passed that way.

CONFLICTING VIEWS

Conflicting statements were made yesterday by various people taking part in the search for Rawlings who has been missing since the crash which took the life of his business partner Cecil Rhodes May 29.

Nevertheless most of those taking part in the massive search operation have now become convinced that Rawlings escaped from the wreckage alive.

ABLE TO COPE

"Everybody is going on the assumption that when he left the site of the crash he was able to cope with the situation," said Maj. W. B. Sutherland, officer commanding 250 troops of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry who have been taking part in the ground search. "There is good evidence Rawlings got out and was fit."

Highlights of a confusing Tuesday were:

● The report that evidence was found of a recent campfire and an arrow of stones presumably pointing in the direction Rawlings had taken. Later, however, RCMP officers said they did not believe "that means anything," that there was not a stone arrow, and that in all probability the evidence of humans having been in the area had been left by previous search parties.

● The discovery of some banana peels and cigar butts of the same filter-tipped brand used by Rawlings. These, too, could have been dropped by other ground parties.

● A statement by search officials that they did not know whether the tracks originally thought to be those of Rawlings were not, in fact, those of searchers.

● An order by search coordinators that all civilians in the area must leave.

● The withdrawal of all but 50 men of the PFCLI from the area, because they could not be "usefully utilized."

● The belief of some experienced woodsmen that the missing man could have remained two or three days at the place where his camera was found, 1,200 feet from the crashed aircraft.

● The decision by co-ordinators that a small party armed with flashlights should continue looking for Rawlings throughout the night.

The search has now been narrowed down to a few areas where it is considered most likely Rawlings would be.

A concerted drive will be made this morning by the remaining Princess Pats accompanied by veteran woodsmen.

Here Comes Gina

Starry-eyed Toronto greets Canada's newest immigrant family as Gina Lollobrigida carries son Milko from plane. With husband Milko Skovic, Gina will rent $1,600-a-month apartment while house-hunting. She said she plans to become a citizen.—(AP Photofax.)

Carefree Philip Lands in Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Prince Philip flew into Uplands Airport Tuesday afternoon for an overnight visit to Canada's capital. He was greeted by Governor-General Vanier and Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

A warm sun smiled down as the prince stepped from a BOAC jetliner following a non-stop flight from London. A crowd of 100 or so lined the edge of the tarmac to watch the arrival.

This morning, the prince is to fly to Toronto for talks aimed at laying the groundwork for an industrial and labor relations conference to be held in 1962, which he is expected to attend.

At the airport, he inspected an RCAF honor guard, signed an air force visitors' book and was presented to a number of foreign diplomats.

In a carefree mood, he chatted animatedly with the diplomats and poked fun at photographers filming the signing of the guest book.

"Bet you've never taken this one before," he remarked to them as he swiftly stroked his name across the page.

Chinese Mutiny Quelled in Tibet

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Several Red Chinese officers were killed by their own soldiers in a planned mutiny in various Chinese military camps in Tibet, reports here said today. Unconfirmed reports said the mutineers suffered more than 2,000 casualties.

Other reports said new officers were sent from Peking to quell the uprising. Mutiny followed complaints of new Chinese and Tibetan recruits over lack of adequate food and inhuman treatment by the officers.

Herter Thinks Ike Will Visit Japan

Trouble Likely

TOKYO (AP)—Leftist students vowed Tuesday to group on airport runways June 19 to halt President Eisenhower's arrival for a four-day state visit.

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Christian Herter said Tuesday he believes President Eisenhower should, and will, go ahead with his visit to Japan June 19-22 despite growing concern about what he may face there.

Chilean Lake Still Rising

Flood, Gales Stop 35,000 Fleeing Quake-Jolted City

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Some 35,000 persons began streaming out of quake-wrecked Valdivia last night on foot and in carts and trucks to escape the flood threat posed by the rain-swollen waters of Lake Rinihue, 45 miles east of the city.

But gales and heavy rains cut off land, sea and air approaches to the city, blocking all efforts to move the city's populace to safety.

Heavy seas stopped two Chilean cruisers trying to reach 1,600 women and children at a nearby harbor. Fifteen Chilean freighters stood by to aid in the mass rescue when the weather cleared. Argentina alerted its merchant marine to aid if necessary.

Bomarc Fire

Radiation Released

McGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N.J. (AP)—Fire broke out Tuesday in the launching shelter of an atomic-armed Bomarc-A anti-aircraft missile, releasing a small amount of radiation, the air force reported.

At first there was fear of widespread radiation over the sparsely populated pineland area around the base east of here. However, the air force in Washington later said there was no "significant" danger to the public.

The few highways that crisscross the remote countryside were closed off for a time. Police with geiger counters checked cars coming from the direction of the base.

A defence department expert said there had been no explosion.

The Bomarc-A is similar in outward appearance to the Bomarc-B which Canada is to get to man two anti-aircraft squadrons.

McGuire is about 35 miles northeast of Philadelphia. The air force said the blaze broke out at 3:15 p.m. and was extinguished 45 minutes later.

Soviet Colonialism

With the national awakening of the peoples of Asia and Africa and their longing for self-determination it is not possible any longer to refuse them the right to decide their fate.

Against this background the rise of the Soviet colonial empire appears as one of history's most bitter jokes. There can be no greater anachronism than the emergence of this empire at the time of the disappearance or transformation of the old ones. Not only does it seem a paradox that 100,000,000 peoples should be deprived of the independence, which some of them had enjoyed for a thousand years, just at a time when so many young nations are obtaining it for the first time. There is also the fact that the former colonial powers usually brought with them a superior civilization which is certainly not what Soviet rule brought to the Balts, the Czechs, the Germans, the Hungarians, the Poles, etc.

Whatever their faults the British, the French, the Belgians or the Dutch, built schools and hospitals, improved general health, helped the subject peoples to a higher standard of life. But for the millions of central and eastern Europeans the Soviet rule means a lower standard of life and until quite recently, an economic exploitation such as no Western colonialist could ever have dreamed of.

Can such a colonial empire survive the general anti-colonial trend of our time?

And if not, how can its dissolution be achieved peacefully without provoking a colossal convulsion with unpredictable consequences?

People in Poland and in other captive countries are fully aware of their real situation, but they never give way to despair. Betrayed in their cherished hopes and bitterly disappointed they still believe in the Western values of freedom, human dignity and independence.

The unyielding attitude of these nations constitutes a serious challenge to the Soviet domination. The great conflict of our time is not capitalism versus communism; it is freedom against tyranny. And freedom is indivisible. In this atomic age the world cannot live half free and half slave!

Murderous Dogs

A bad human being is restrained and a bad dog should be. Last week an unrestrained boxer dog raided my chickens, killed a poor little hen, took it away where there were other dogs who tore it apart with a lot of gleeful barking. The owner of the dog was away all day.

Some time ago three pointer dogs that were unrestrained broke the backs, mutilated and killed 14 of my hens, injuring many more, with blood streaming from their mouths, they defiled me in their murderous slaughter. The police came and we picked up the dead and injured.

I have owned many a wonderful dog, like Lassie, as being a farmer and rancher I used them for sheep and cattle. I have handled huskies and a she-wolf in the north and these were hitched to a long line so they could run up and down on a pulley to a lake. But it is only the bad actor that needs a leash and a muzzle.

Ferries Sign to Go To Soothe Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP) — Recreation Minister Earle Westwood said Tuesday controversial "ferries" signs outside Victoria will be taken down immediately.

Nanaimo officials protested use of the signs because they indicated only the Highway 17 route to Sidney, from where the government ferry will operate when the service begins.

The signs gave no indication of the route to Nanaimo ferry docks used by Black Ball and CPR.

Fallers, Buckers Guests

DUNCAN — Eleven fallers and buckers were guests of honor at a dinner put on by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. for completing four years without an accident.

Shawigan division manager Gerald Welburn said during that time 170,000,000 board feet of lumber was felled and cut, a safety record for the division.

The men are John and Bill Evans, Dick Reid, Doug Cleough, Urbain Paquette, Frank Davis, Jack Fleetwood, Henry Fedje, Ron Gammie, Wes Braithwaite and Elmer Campbell.

Mayor in Solo Debate As Aldermen File Out

ALBERNI — Dissension in Alberni council chambers reached a new pitch Monday when aldermen rebelled against Mayor Mabel Anderson's ruling that contents of a letter from the postmaster-general of Canada could not be discussed.

Postmaster-General William Hamilton announced in his letter that action on extensive alterations to Alberni post office will be held up pending clarification of the wishes of postal patrons of the area.

DIVIDED ON ISSUE

He referred to recent representation from Alberni residents requesting a referendum on the question of postal delivery or improvements to the post office building.

He mentioned in his letter that these representations, along with the fact that council had been divided on the issue with the mayor's vote the deciding factor when a request was made earlier this year for improvement and enlargement of the building, indicated that the action might be contrary to the wishes of the majority.

After Ald. Fred Bishop announced that he refused to be "hog-tied" by Her Worship's order against discussion of the letter, the mayor threatened Ald. George Dunbar with expulsion from the meeting, had declared aldermen Tom Barnett and Charles Blair out of order, had inferred that aldermen held secret meetings on council business, had been asked to apologize, and had cited Section 178 of the Municipal Act as the basis of her ruling against the discussion.

RECEIVED, FILED The postmaster-general's letter was ordered received and filed on the understanding that it would be discussed at a future meeting.

Aldermen, who had in the past questioned the mayor's interpretation of Section 178, decided unanimously in favor of her suggestion that it be referred to the inspector of municipalities for an interpretation.

The hassle over the letter was at its height when Ald.

Bishop asked that the postmaster-general be notified that council is not against a referendum but that it is not empowered to spend public funds for the purpose. The mayor interrupted him with a demand that he take his seat.

REFUSED TO VOTE

After over two hours of interrupted dissension, adjournment was moved and seconded at 9:57, and aldermen refused to vote for an extension of time when Mayor Anderson announced that she had further business to discuss.

She said she had been to Victoria and had investigated title of land involved in an agreement to purchase property for approaches to the proposed Kitsuksis Creek bridge.

One by one, aldermen filed from the room, the mayor stating that it was obvious they did not wish to hear the truth. She said she was aware that the walk-out was a gag staged to delay the announcement of her findings.

Later she told a reporter that while in Victoria she had discovered that there was a mortgage of over $2,000 on the property and that the title had not been released.

Old School Closing Doors

PORT ALBERNI — The 35-year-old Great Central School will be closed at the end of the current term and elementary school children remaining in the settlement will be transported to Sproat Lake School.

The school dates from the opening of the Bloedel, Stewart and Welch sawmill at Great Central in 1925. It was taken over from the company by the school district following consolidation in 1946.

Recently MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. announced that residents would be permitted to buy the company houses in which they live for $1 each with the proviso that they be moved from the logging camp site. The firm will no longer maintain the camp, which is only some 12 miles from Alberni on a paved road.

District Superintendent D. G. Chamberlain reported at the school board meeting Monday that there will probably be only 22 elementary school children at Great Central by September. High school students are now transported to and from city schools.

Made Homeless by Fires

What Now? Families Ask

Two families in the lower Vancouver Island area, made homeless by fires within the past few days, have not yet decided what move to make next.

William Ferriday, married

and father of two children, borrowed a house trailer from a friend after the family's home at 2225 Arbutus was extensively damaged by fire, smoke and water when the cedar shingle roof burned Monday night.

The family will remain at the site until it is learned whether or not their seven-room home can be repaired. They salvaged enough clothing to meet their needs.

Nora Cameron and her four children moved temporarily into the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grey Moseley, 1½ miles west of Glen Lake, after their Sooke Road home burned to the ground Saturday. Her husband, Tom Cameron, is out logging.

Saanich council last night gave Reeve George Chatterton emergency powers to impose water restrictions in the municipality this summer if a critical situation arises.

Similar powers were granted last year although no restrictions were imposed.

Mr. Chatterton commented that with the unusually wet spring this year he felt it unlikely that any serious shortage of water would develop.

Fastest-handed motion at Saanich council meeting last night took less than five seconds from the time Reeve George Chatterton called for it and when it was unanimously passed.

When he noticed that the sinking sun was shining through windows into the eyes of clerk Gordon Hayward, Mr. Chatterton suggested someone might move that blinds be installed as soon as possible.

Someone cried out "So move." Someone else seconded the motion and Mr. Chatterton wrapped it up with:

"All those in favor - all those - against - carried."

Esquimalt Powerless
In Boulevard Issue

Esquimalt council, informed earlier in the week it has no power to force residents to maintain boulevards outside their homes, decided last night to leave the matter up to the people themselves.

After checking maintenance figures for Victoria and Oak Bay, council decided that municipal maintenance would prove too expensive. Instead, a motion was passed "to continue to solicit the support of residents in keeping their boulevards cut and generally serviced."

Council also supported a request by the intermunicipal committee to send a letter to the B.C. Telephone Company asking that the directories be published twice a year instead of once, and that the street names no longer be abbreviated.

Static displays in hangars will trace the history of the RCAF and continuous movies will be open to the visitors.

New Bylaw
On Signs
Ready Soon

A new draft of a sign bylaw for the city is expected to be submitted late this week or early next week to a special committee including Ald. Rev. J. L. W. McLean and sign company representatives.

Assistant city engineer Rodrick Clark was instructed to prepare the new draft after sign companies attacked a previous draft as too restrictive and public works committee rejected it.

The new draft will be submitted later to public works committee.

Rates
'Fair'

The unorganized areas served by the Greater Victoria water board have no representation on the board because they have no investment in the water supply system, Mayor Percy Scurrah said yesterday.

The mayor, chairman of the water board, was replying to A. J. Cottyn, president of the Colwood and District Chamber of Commerce, who said Monday the chamber is planning a strong protest to the Public Utilities Commission against a board application for an increase in rates beyond the Greater Victoria municipal boundaries.

Mr. Cottyn claimed the unorganized areas should have representation on the board, and also held that the board should be receiving sufficient money from watershed logging profits and a rural rate increase two years ago.

"The unorganized areas have no investment in the water system whatever, and the municipalities have," Mayor Scurrah said.

HAVE TO BUILD

"We don't want to increase the rates, but the increase is necessary to finance the tunnel, and we are using logging profits to pay as much cash as possible—perhaps $600,000 or $700,000 if log prices stay up."

FUC-APPROVED

To Mr. Cottyn's claim that "they can make all the regulations they like and we have nothing we can do about it," the mayor replied that regulations and rate schedules for the unorganized areas had to be approved by the PUC.

"We're not charging any more than is absolutely necessary and fair," he said.

The board increased the wholesale rate it charges its member municipalities 30 per cent from the beginning of this year.

Full Timetable Drawn Up
By New Area Family Court

Victoria's new family court has drawn up for itself a full timetable to handle the required business of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and, when necessary, Colwood and View Royal.

Judge J. A. Byers, appointed June 1 to the new court with deputy judge Harold Alder, established the new timetable at a meeting with court clerks and prosecutors involved.

Alternate Monday afternoons will be devoted to Saanich family cases including husband-and-wife assaults. The other Mondays may be taken over by Saanich if necessary. Tuesday afternoon will be devoted to Victoria family cases.

Wednesday afternoon will remain Victoria juvenile court day.

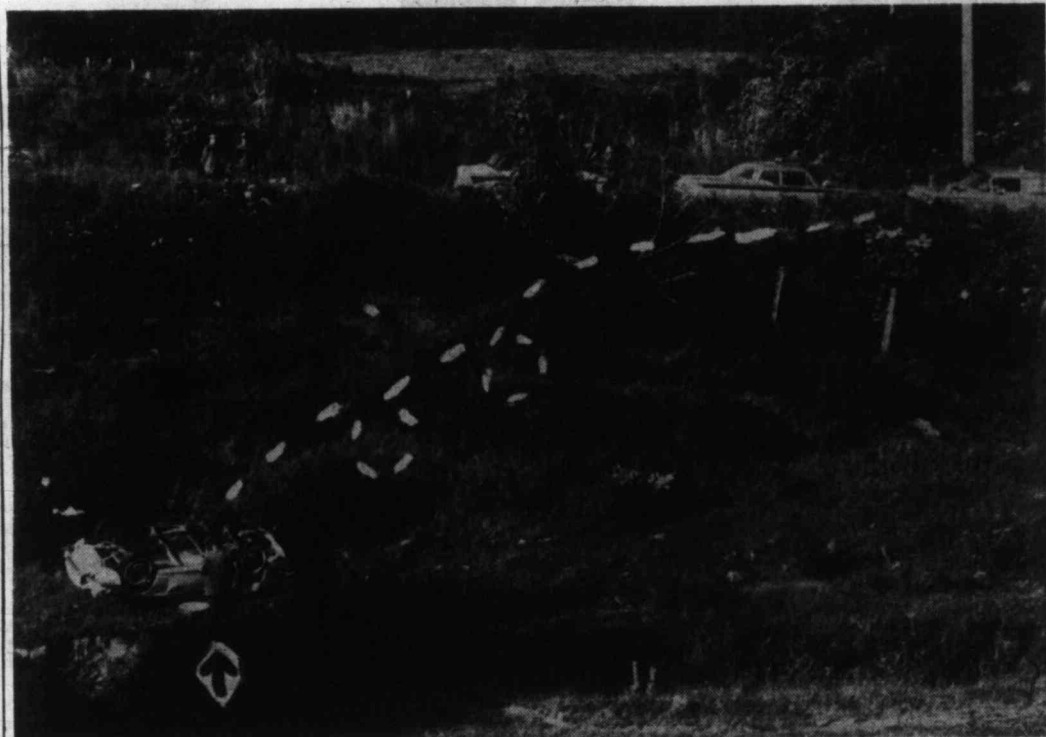

Friday morning will be Oak Bay's sitting, including both family and juvenile matters.

Friday afternoon, as at present, will be Saanich juvenile court session.

Colwood and View Royal cases will be fitted in when court time for them is required.

Present clerks of juvenile courts in each municipality will continue to act, and will add family court to their work.

Prosecutors will be: T. P. O'Grady for Victoria; Kenneth Murphy for Saanich; Alan Bigelow for Oak Bay.

A roll of color film which could prove conclusively whether Cecil Rawlings survived the crash of his business partner's aircraft was taken by jet to Toronto for processing yesterday.

RCMP expect to learn by 1 p.m. today what the partially-exposed film shows.

They said that although there were processing facilities available in Victoria and Seattle there was no guarantee the color would not eventually fade and for this reason it had been decided to send the film to the manufacturers in Toronto for processing.

Rawlings camera was found some 1,200 feet from the wreckage, near a bed of leaves which he might have used.

If the film has shots of the wreckage, it will prove Rawlings got out of the crash alive.

TOFINO — Gary Russell Joneson of Vancouver was sentenced to two years in the B.C. Penitentiary by Magistrate Joseph Webb in Uchelet police court for the theft of a pickup truck belonging to Allan Davison of Uchelet.

Lieut. Wallace reported his platoon, which had concentrated on searching the area from the crash site over towards Hobbit Lake, had found no clues or evidence that Rawlings had been there.

Bride Wears Orange Blossom Picked in Parents' Garden

A bride at St. John's Anglican Church, last Saturday, was Patricia Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter White, 3821 Miramonte Drive.

At an afternoon ceremony conducted by Canon George Biddle, she exchanged vows with Mr. David Robert Duke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Duke of Victoria.

A long wedding dress of Japanese brocade with French lace trimming the scooped neckline, was chosen by the bride. Fresh orange blossom picked in her parent's garden formed a headdress holding her veil.

Pink roses and stephanotis were in her bouquet.

Matching dresses of cornflower blue nylon over taffeta with lace jackets were worn by the bridesmaids, Misses Jane White and Margaret Duke. Their headdresses were net and they carried pink carnations.

Mr. Gerry Dick was best man, Mr. Dave McClinton and Mr. Peter White, brother of the bride, acted as ushers.

Mr. Hugh R. Stephen proposed the toast at a reception held at the home of the bride's parents.

The new Mrs. Duke changed into a floral orange brocade suit with beige accessories, for going away. The couple left for a honeymoon driving into the United States.

On their return they will live at Campbell River.

Dolores Woods Wed At Cadboro Bay

A reception at Uplands Golf Club followed the marriage last Saturday evening of Dolores Woods and Mr. Robert Neville Brown.

The wedding took place in St. George the Martyr Church, Cadboro Bay with Rev. W. Hills, conducting the service. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Woods, 2915 Hobbs Road. Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Brown are parents of the groom.

A floor-length gown of Chantilly lace in rose design was chosen by the bride. The neckline was outlined with lace flowers.

A silk band with a small bow accented the empire line of the bodice which billowed into a hooped skirt. A head-dress of seed pearls held the bride's veil. And she carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and carnations.

Maid of honor, Miss Anyrre Beere held a colonial bouquet of similar flowers. She wore a ballerina-length gown of pale blue chiffon and matching headpiece.

Mr. Denis Cullimore was best man. Ushers were Mr. Gary Dickinson, Victoria, and Mr. Kenneth Elder of Vancouver.

TIPS FOR PARENTS

By EDITH HENRY

Judging by the families seen on the highways, travelling by car with children is popular.

It does allow privacy. You can sing together as you go along, stop when you wish, and certainly the food situation is under better control.

Seasoned travellers stress careful thinking and preparation as the secret of a successful and happy trip.

Decide first whether you will travel by night or day. Your decision will be influenced by the length of trip, the time you wish to arrive, and the possible or impossible behavior of the children.

If the youngest member of the party is at the crawling, climbing stage you will be more relaxed travelling when Junior is asleep.

Simply lift him from his own bed to the car bed. The immediate motion will help him to settle down again.

You may, however, wish older children to see points of interest as you go along.

It may be possible to combine both advantages by starting in the late afternoon or the very early morning.

One family took juice and a cookie, started out at once, and breakfasted after going a distance. This helped them to leave a tidier house, and saved time in travelling, and gave the children a break in the long journey.

Packing the car with foresight is a "must." Keep a list for a few days ahead of the things you use in the regular home routine.

Add to this changes needed in travelling — paper towels, paper bags for waste, damp cloths for faces and fingers, and a first aid kit, just in case. Put these things within easy reach.

Plan to pack the car when the children are in the house asleep. Their eager help is confusing.

Bags, blankets can go in the space in front of the back seat. On top place the crib mattress, sheeted. This makes excellent play and sleeping quarters.

Baby's bassinette mattress on the front seat will relieve mother of holding the child in her arms.

TORIES SWEEP NOVA SCOTIA

Liberal Leader Loses

HALIFAX (CP) — The Progressive Conservative government of Nova Scotia won an overwhelming endorsement from the electors Tuesday.

(See also Page 3.)

"My party realizes the great responsibility that we have and we are gratefully thankful for the new mandate given us," Premier Robert L. Stanfield said in Truro, where he got results in his own constituency of Colchester. He won easily over Liberal and CCF candidates.

Final CP Standing

	1960	1956
Prog. Con.	27	24
Liberals	15	18
CCF	1	1
Total	43	43

All Mr. Stanfield's cabinet ministers were re-elected with him. The Progressive Conservative group in 43-seat House will number 27, three more than after the 1956 election.

The Liberals, 15-strong four years ago, now have 15 members in the House. The CCF, as in 1956, elected one.

PERSONAL DEFEAT

Liberal Leader Henry Hicks, who suffered personal defeat in Annapolis East, said he plans to take a weekend trip before deciding his future. Hanson T. Dowell, a former president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, won Mr. Hicks' seat for the Conservatives by 14 votes. A recount is in prospect.

Kentville Mayor Gladys Porter became the first woman ever elected to the legislature. She won for the Progressive Conservatives in Kings North.

POSED QUESTION

The sweeping Conservative victory posed the question of leadership of the Liberal party, which Mr. Hicks won at a bitterly-fought 1954 party convention. He succeeded the late Angus L. Macdonald, premier from 1933 until 1954 except for a period of wartime service in the federal cabinet.

Mr. Hicks expressed surprise at the defeat of Liberal financial critic Ronald M. Fielding in Halifax Northwest.

CLOSE LOSSES

"How close can you come?" he asked. "He loses by 17 votes, myself by 14."

CCF Leader Michael Macdonald was the only member elected by his party. He has represented Cape Breton Centre in the House since 1945. The other 33 CCF candidates generally trailed but drew a much larger share of the popular vote than in 1956 when their 11 candidates gained only three per cent.

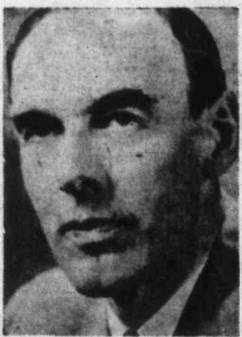

Philip Lands In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Prince Philip flew into Uplands Airport Tuesday afternoon for an overnight visit to Canada's capital. He was greeted by Governor-General Vanier and Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

This morning, the prince is to fly to Toronto for talks aimed at laying the groundwork for an industrial and labor relations conference to be held in 1962, which he is expected to attend.

Helicopter Drops Searcher In Baffling Rawlings Hunt

Bomarc missile launching shelter, centre, smoulders following blaze that spread some radiation in vicinity of base near Philadelphia. Pentagon said TNT trigger of missile's nuclear warhead "torched" without exploding.—(AP Photofax.)

Bomarc Fire

Radiation Released

MCGUIRE AIR FORCE BASE, N.J. (AP)—Fire broke out Tuesday in the launching shelter of an atomic-armed Bomarc-A anti-aircraft missile, releasing a small amount of radiation, the air force reported.

At first there was fear of widespread radiation over the sparsely-populated pineland area around the base east of here. However, the air force in Washington later said there was no "significant" danger to the public.

The few highways that crisscross the remote countryside were closed off for a time. Police with geiger counters checked cars coming from the direction of the base.

A defence department expert said there had been no explosion.

The Bomarc-A is similar in outward appearance to the Bomarc-B which Canada is to get to man two anti-aircraft squadrons.

McGuire is about 35 miles northeast of Philadelphia. The air force said the blaze broke out at 3:15 p.m. and was extinguished 45 minutes later.

A sergeant at the missile base first called state police at the Fort Dix station saying "an atomic warhead had exploded" and asked troopers to shut off the roads because of heavy radiation. Police did so.

The fire was in a 50-foot concrete shed that houses the slender missile.

On the basis of first reports, officials speculated the fire may have melted or burned open part of the covering of the nuclear armament of the Bomarc.

Chinese Mutiny Quelled in Tibet

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Several Red Chinese officers were killed by their own soldiers in a planned mutiny in various Chinese military camps in Tibet, reports here said today. Unconfirmed reports said the mutineers suffered more than 2,000 casualties.

Other reports said new officers were sent from Peking to quell the uprising. Mutiny followed complaints of new Chinese and Tibetan recruits over lack of adequate food and inhuman treatment by the officers.

Herter Thinks Ike Will Visit Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Christian Herter said Tuesday he believes President Eisenhower should, and will, go ahead with his visit to Japan June 19-22 despite growing concern about what he may face there.

But Senator William Fulbright (Dem., Ark.), chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee before which Herter testified, said his misgivings about Eisenhower's going have not been entirely set to rest.

TOKYO (AP)—Leftist students vowed Tuesday to group on airport runways June 19 to halt President Eisenhower's arrival for a four-day state visit.

Chilean Lake Still Rising

Flood, Gales Stop 35,000 Fleeing Quake-Jolted City

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Some 35,000 persons began streaming out of quake-wrecked Valdivia last night on foot and in carts and trucks to escape the flood threat posed by the rain-swollen waters of Lake Rinihue, 45 miles east of the city.

But gales and heavy rains cut off land, sea and air approaches to the city, blocking all efforts to move the city's populace to safety.

Heavy seas stopped two Chilean cruisers trying to reach 1,600 women and children at a nearby harbor.

Fifteen Chilean freighters stood by to aid in the mass rescue when the weather cleared. Argentina alerted its merchant marine to aid if necessary.

Tropical rains washed out Valdivia's airport and stranded 100 children waiting there to be airlifted to Santiago. Flooded highways stranded another 200 persons seeking to get by land to nearby Temuco, and halted 54 trucks carrying emergency supplies to the area.

Cigaret, Arrow, Campfire Clues 'May Mean Nothing'—RCMP

By PETER BRUTON and ALEC MERRIMAN

Ten days after a light Seabee aircraft slammed into a Nitinat Lake mountainside the search for its missing passenger went onto a 24-hour, around-the-clock basis after a day in which more baffling and inconclusive clues to his whereabouts were unearthed.

It is now apparent that the 300-man army of searchers in the dense, dank timber country 70 miles north of Victoria have in some cases mistaken signs and tracks left by other searchers as evidence that the missing Victoria taxi owner Cecil Rawlings had passed that way.

CONFLICTING VIEWS

Conflicting statements were made yesterday by various people taking part in the search for Rawlings who has been missing since the crash, which took the life of his business partner Cecil Rhodes May 29.

Nevertheless most of those taking part in the massive search operation have now become convinced that Rawlings escaped from the wreckage alive.

ABLE TO COPE

"Everybody is going on the assumption that when he left the site of the crash he was able to cope with the situation," said Maj. W. B. Sutherland, officer commanding 250 troops of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry who have been taking part in the ground search.

"There is good evidence Rawlings got out and was fit."

Highlights of a confusing Tuesday were:

● The report that evidence was found of a recent campfire and an arrow of stones presumably pointing in the direction Rawlings had taken. Later, however, RCMP officers said they did not believe "that means anything," that there was not a stone arrow, and that in all probability the evidence of humans having been in the area had been left by previous search parties.

● The discovery of some banana peelings and cigarette butts of the same filter-tipped brand used by Rawlings. These, too, could have been dropped by other ground parties.

● A statement by search officials that they did not know whether the tracks originally thought to be those of Rawlings were not, in fact, those of searchers.

● An order by search coordinators that all civilians in the area must leave.

● The withdrawal of all but 50 men of the PPCLI from the area because they could not be "usefully utilized."

● The belief of some experienced woodsmen that the missing man could have remained two or three days at the place where his camera was found, 1,200 feet from the crashed aircraft.

● The decision by co-ordinators that a small party armed with flashlights should continue looking for Rawlings throughout the night.

The search has now been narrowed down to a few areas where it is considered most likely Rawlings would be.

A concerted drive will be made this morning by the remaining Princess Pats accompanied by veteran woodsmen.

Cable Snaps

Copter Drops Tired Hunter

Search parties seeking Cecil Rawlings ran into their first disaster last evening—and again the entire story was a mystery.

An RCAF helicopter, trying to airlift an exhausted searcher from the mountainous terrain, failed when the cable broke and dropped the man crashing back to the ground.

HAD TO LEAVE

With the second helicopter back in Vancouver for essential overhaul and darkness falling rapidly, the RCAF was forced to turn its back on the situation.

Copters are not permitted to operate after dark.

This is how the story unfolded:

WAVED AWAY

On a late check of the area near the crashed Seabee, Flt. Lt. P. T. Mathews spotted a small search party with a man who appeared exhausted. A pass was made to investigate, but the party waved the ship away.

Later, Mathews and his crew saw the man again, alone, flat on the ground and apparently unconscious, and the pilot felt he must investigate. A first-aid crewman was lowered on the winch to check condition, and started to send the searcher up by cable.

The cable broke when about 100 feet was out, but there was no indication of how far the man fell or how seriously he was injured. With darkness falling, Mathews was forced to leave the crewman and his patient.

Mathews said he believed the crewman made the searcher as comfortable and warm as possible, and set out to try to find a search party to carry the man safely.

NOTHING KNOWN

That was all that will be known until morning.

How seriously was the man injured? What was the crewman's plan? Who was the victim? These were new mysteries in a baffling case.

RCMP are investigating and the RCAF has requested an immediate board of inquiry.

RCAF officials said there was "absolutely no possibility" that the man lying on the ground could be Rawlings.
